REDUCE ARMS, REVISE DEBTS, URGES BORAH

NOTES FROM OTHER NATIONS SENT TO HOOVER

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Notes from England and France on war debts brought a statement from Senator Borah tonight that the "policies which have made postponement necessary will destroy civilization if they are continued."

The Republican chairman of the senate foreign affairs committee who has advocated a reduction of armaments by European countries, said that "proposals for postponement and moratoriums should be accompanied by a program which will give some assurance that things will be different from this time on."

Borah's statement was a reaffirmation of the position he announced in the last session of congress when the debt question was brought to the fore. At that time he said he would be willing to have this country consider the reduction or cancellation of the war debts only if positive assurance could be given that the money thus saved the foreign nations would not be used by them to build up bigger armies and navies.

Hoover Gets Notes

He then declared that the only way this assurance could be given would be for the debtor nations to sign a treaty reducing by international agreement world armaments to a scale strictly for police purposes.

"If Great Britain cannot pay at this time without imperilling the economic fabric of the world," Borah said, "she will be far less able to pay without even greater consequences in the future unless the whole international program is changed."

The statement was issued as President Hoover was en route to Washington to discuss the debt situation with government and congressional leaders. Secretary of State Stimson already has transmitted the French and English notes to Mr. Hoover. Their contents will be disclosed in Monday morning's papers.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, an administration spokesman, recently said the question would be "thrown into congress" at the coming session.

Early in the day Senator Bingham (R. Conn.) in voicing opposition to cancellation or an extension of the moratorium, said he did not see how the problem could be brought up in congress in view of the Democratic platform which declares against debt reductions. In addition, Bingham pointed out that congress went on record at its last session against further reduction or cancellation of the war debts.

"Mr. Barry," he said, "comes to us because of his belief that the work immediately ahead offers an exceptional opportunity for important public service."

President Views Site of Big Dam; Course of River Changes Today

BY W. B. CLAUSEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Boulder City, Nev., Nov. 12 (AP)—President Herbert Hoover came tonight to see the Colorado river flow for its last night over the spot from which will rise one of the greatest engineering works of man, a tremendous dam that is to bear his name.

Tomorrow morning the mighty river will be shoved out of its bed and diverted through a big hole in its canyon wall so that excavation work may be started for the Hoover dam.

Welcomed to City

Under the flood lights of hundreds of electroliers made from dishpans, providing the illumination for night work in the mile-deep canyon, the president inspected the construction.

The president's first inspection of this $165,000,000 project, which he was instrumental in bringing into existence while secretary of commerce and acting as mediator between the seven western states involved, came tonight on the eve of the accomplishment of the first major step in the big program.

The chief executive was welcomed to this federal city, a model construction town, by Chief Engineer R. F. Walter of the reclamation service, Walter R. Young, reclamation service construction engineer of the project, and engineers and officers of the six companies, general contractors of the project.

Ahead of Schedule

After the greetings and inspection of quarters, the presidential party was motored down the steep canyon roads to the river bed, eight miles from the town site.

There, under the floodlights, were the yawning holes of the four great tunnels, two on each side of the river, that will divert its flow during the building of the dam.

More than half the section of the river bed where the dam will rest was bared by an earthfill dam extending almost across to the Arizona side.

Across the intake of the outer Arizona tunnel was a temporary dam, which is to be blased shortly before noon tomorrow turning the course of the river into this tunnel. This will mark the diversion, the shoving of the river from its bed.

FITZGERALD'S LEAD REDUCED

But Secretary Is Still Ahead by Margin of 3404 Votes

Detroit, Nov. 12. (AP)—A contest which for closeness promised to rival the noted Brucker-Groesbeck battle for the Republican gubernatorial nomination two years ago appeared to be in the making in the fight between Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican and B. J. Abbott, Democrat, for the office of secretary of state in last Tuesday's election.

With returns tabulated from 3,407 of the state's 3,417 voting precincts, Fitzgerald held a margin tonight of 3404, a few less than he held 24 hours earlier. The latest total was reached on the compilation of some official figures from county canvassing boards, unofficial complete returns from others and additional reports from precincts that had been late forwarding the vote.

The total vote in these 2407 precincts stood: Fitzgerald, 755,157; Abbott, 751,753.

In the gubernatorial primary fight in 1930 the final official canvass gave Wilber M. Brucker a lead of 4,161 votes over former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck. The ballots cast in a number of precincts were recounted upon demand of Groesbeck.

Might Seek Recount

Whether the Fitzgerald-Abbott race will result in a request for a recount probably will depend largely upon the result shown in the final official report to the state canvassing board. Democratic leaders previous had been quoted as saying they might seek such a recount in the event Abbott's final figures showed him 2,000 or less behind Fitzgerald.

Another noted close contest in Michigan's more recent political history was in the Ford-Newberry senatorial primary contest. Neither in this nor in the 1930 gubernatorial primary, however, was an unusually heavy vote cast. The totals of the Fitzgerald-Abbott race, with 10 precincts still out showed than more than 1,506,000 votes were cast.

Another contest that appeared close, but gave indications of having received the final approval of the voters was the proposed amendment to the state constitution which would limit the state propery tax to $15 per $1,000 valuation. With returns from 3,157 out of 3,417 precincts the early margin against the proposal had been wiped out and in place a favorable margin of more than 2,000 votes had been set up.

The figures were: yes, 610,150; no, 608,142.

Injuries Are Fatal To Yale Professor

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 12 (AP)—Professor Charles P. Howland, research associate at Yale and prominent international lawyer, was fatally injured tonight in an automobile accident. He was 63 years old.

Howland, a trustee of Johns Hopkins university and of the Rockefeller foundation, was returning from Princeton, N. J., where his son played on the Yale football team against the Tiger.

Weekly Newspaper Publisher Passes

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 12 (AP)—Paul Edson Spink, 78, who had published weekly newspapers in three states, died last night.

He was publisher in Kansas, Iowa, and Minnesota at various times before coming here to live eight years ago.

Funeral services will be conducted here Monday. Spink was born in Hanover, Mich.

Grain Prices Rise As Beer Is Forseen

Chicago, Nov. 12. (AP)—Prospects of modification of prohibition laws had much to do with sweeping advances in the grain markets today.

Barley paced the advance with a 4 1-2 per cent gain and trade in this grain continued firm. Corn was in greater demand than of late and swung along on a much wider front, with wheat and rye also well advanced. Buying was encouraged by strength in stocks and other commodities.

Traders early manifested their expressed belief that modification of the Volstead Act to permit manufacture of beer was imminent by flooding the pits with buying orders for all grains. And the buyers found few sellers until prices had risen to the point where minor profits could be taken.

December delivery reached 33 1-2 sents a bushel and the May option 37 cents.

DEATH CLAIMS OLD RESIDENT

Mrs. Henry Snyder, 72, Lived in Delta for 45 Years

Mrs. Henry Snyder, 1431 North Eighteenth street, a resident of Delta county for almost half a century, passed away last night at 10:15 o'clock at the St. Francis hospital following a short illness. Death was attributed to complications developing from leukaemia. She was in her 73rd year.

Mrs. Snyder, nee Victoria Posenke, was born in December of 1860 in Germany where she was reared and schooled and in 1887 when 27 years of age she came to the United States, coming directly to Ford River Mills where she settled, residing there for 25 years. In 1912 Mrs. Snyder moved to this city where she has resided since.

The deceased was a devout member of St. Joseph's Catholic church and a member and active worker in the St. Joseph Ladies' Altar society.

Surviving are her widower, Henry, two sons, John J. Bartella of Escanaba and Frank J. Bartella of Chicago, two daughters, Mrs. Charles G. Johnson of Escanaba and Mrs. P. J. Milligan, Sr., of Foster City, and two brothers, Stephen Posenke of Ford River Switch and Stanic Posenke of Chicago.

The body was removed to the Allo Funeral Home to be prepared for burial and this evening at 7 o'clock will be returned to the family home on North Eighteenth street where it will repose until the hour of last rites.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Joseph's church with Rev. Fr. Edward Leary celebrant at a requiem high mass. Interment will be in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery.

24 Men Are Killed In Mine Explosion

Wigan, Lancashire, Eng., Nov. (AP)—Twenty-four men were killed and a number of others were injured early today by an unexplained explosion in the Edgegreen colliery at Ashton-in-Makerfield.

It was the second serious accident in the Wigan coal-fields in a month. On Oct. 10, nineteen men were killed when an elevator dropped 1,500 feet to the bottom of a pit shaft.

Today's accident occurred in dary hours of the morning while a hundred men of the night shift were at work. Within a few minutes doctors were on hand and the rescue work was under way.

LEGISLATURE MUST DECIDE LIQUOR ISSUE

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS HAVE MEETING

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP)—Law enforcement officials of Detroit indicated at a conference today that the Michigan legislature would be looked to for a clarification of the situation created by the repeal of the so-called "bone dry" clause of the state constitution at Tuesday's election.

Mayor Frank Murphy who called the conference for the purpose of determining the city's attitude to future enforcement of the state prohibition laws remarked that Tuesday's vote "is a mandate from the people and our objective is to determine every legal aspect of that mandate and act accordingly."

The mayor said that "first of all we want the state legislature so soon as it meets to clarify the situation so it will be plain to both the citizens and the enforcing agencies. We cannot put ourselves in the inconsistent position of encouraging the violation of the present laws."

Laws Still Effective

Mayor Murphy agreed with Prosecutor Harry S. Toy's opinion that the state prohibition law remains in effect after Dec. 8 until repealed by the state legislature. The amendment adopted at Tuesday's election is effective Dec. 8.

Prosecutor Toy said that in the meantime, until the new amendment becomes effective, the prohibition law is unaffected in any respect and will be enforced. Existing laws controlling the sale, manufacture or traffic in intoxicants will continue in full force and effect until repealed by the legislature, he said. The prosecutor contended that the amendment affected only these portions of the state prohibition law relating to consumption, use and possession of intoxicants.

Police Supt. John P. Smith said after the conference that until he received orders to the contrary from Commissioner James K. Watkins the police could continue buys, arrests and seizures as in the past. Enforcement activities were continued by the police Friday night and Saturday.

Judges of the recorder's court will meet Monday to determine their future procedure in liquor cases.

Elsewhere in Michigan law enforcement officers seemingly were divided as to the proper procedure to follow. The Washtenaw county sheriff's office and the Ann Arbor police, according to an announcement Friday, will take no action with regard to controlling sale, possession or manufacture of liquor after Dec. 8.

Prosecutor Wilbur Cunningham, of Berrien county, said today that officials of his county would continue as in the past to enforce the law until the status of the law is decided and the county officers are legally notified.

Macomb county officials said today that in view of the stand taken by Governor-elect William A. Comstock and the voters, prosecution of prohibition law violation cases in the county will not be pushed except in extreme cases.

Governor-elect Comstock Thursday said he favored general amnesty for liquor law violators convicted under the state laws.

Prosecutor Toy said that it was his belief that the amendment adopted Tuesday was not retroactive and therefore did not clash any pending criminal or civil proceeding or extend amnesty to those already convicted of liquor law violations.

Will Shift Office Workers to Fields In Soviet Russia

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP)—Russia's white collar workers to the number of between 25,000 and 30,000 are to be transferred from office work to jobs in the field and factories, it was announced today.

The change is to be made, it was explained, on the theory that inefficiency has grown with burcaucracy in the government and economic organization. The "great clutter of minor employees in virtually every government bureau" is held chiefly responsible.

The white collar men who are to be discharged will receive twelve days notice and then their names will go on the labor bureau register for new work in other fields.

Five thousand bookkeepers and clerks will go to work on the farms. Many others will be sent into the factories. Every state organization in Moscow has been ordered to reduce its staff by Dec. 15 to comply with the new regulations.

Garbo Sees London While In Disguise

London, Nov. 12. (AP)—Greta Garbo, the film actress, put on a pair of dark horn-rimmed glasses, buttoned a heavy blue coat up around her ears, and saw the sights of London this week without being identified, it was learned tonight.

She registered a few days ago as Greta Gustafsson in a little Mayfair hotel. No one spotted her and now film fans of London are peeved.

She could not be located tonight, so it was not known whether she had gone to Paris, was on her way back to Stockholm or had headed for the United States.

Miss Garbo created her "mystery" role by concealing herself in clothes not generally worn by the women of Mayfair. In addition to the horn-rimmed glasses and the heavy blue coat she put on a pair of heavy black shoes and quite ordinary black stockings.

Labor Glad Smoot, Bingham Are Out

Washington, Nov. 12. (AP)—The American Federation of Labor said today in a statement that the defeat of Senators Smoot of Utah, Bingham of Connecticut, and Jones of Washington, "deservedly retires to private life three outstanding enemies of working men and women."

After reciting several votes by these senators to which it objected, the federation concluded by wishing "peace to their political ashes."

At the same time the labor organization expressed deep regret at the defeat of Representative Fiorello Leguardia of New York, adding that "his patriotic record in defense of the public interest warrants his return as soon as the machinery of elections will permit."

Beer Foams Up to Engulf Congress in Bitter War Over Nation's Dry Laws

(Editor's Note—This is the first of a series of six stories dealing with the present movement for the return of beer, a movement intensified by the recent elections.)

The speaker's gavel which falls on Dec. 5 to open congress will be a bung-starter.

But how great a flow of what kind of beer can issue from that bung in dry United States is a big question.

This last "lame duck" congress will assemble with an unmistakable cry from the entire country ringing in its ears and demanding that something be done about prohibition.

Something will be done. Just what, is less certain than some enthusiasts believe. They think it is all over but the shouting.

The first move will be for legal beer, immediately, before the eighteenth amendment is touched. Assume, that by adding together the wets and such former drys as accept the "mandate of the people," such a bill can be passed. What will it be?

If the beer provided is really intoxicating in fact, it clearly violates the constitution, and the courts will have no choice but to throw it out. If it is really non-intoxicating, will it satisfy the thirsty?

Somewhere between sub-zero near-beer now permitted, and a beer with an unquestioned kick, lies a compromise. A compromise that will make the brew palatable with maybe just the least bit of a

Cuba Begins Gigantic Reconstruction Task, Storm Toll Near 2,000

Camaguey, Cuba, Nov. 12 (AP)—Cuba has turned its hand once again to the task of reconstruction, surrounded here by the desolation left in the path of one of the most disastrous hurricanes of recent years.

The number of dead is estimated at from 1,000 to 1,700, and it appeared possible that when the full story is told the toll may reach 2,000. Most of the victims were those who dived in Santa Cruz Del Sur, on the southern coast.

The work now is mostly up to the doctors. Rebuilding will begin later, but it seems probable that Santa Cruz Del Sur, wiped out by wind and tidal wave, will not be built again.

All Grief-Stricken

Refugees from there and from other towns in Camaguey province have come here, afoot, a few by motor, and many aboard freight trains. Most of them are hurt. Nearly all of them are grief-stricken, for few families escaped without loss.

Doctors from Havana and elsewhere are working without thought of rest, mending the injured, restoring sanitation facilities, and inoculating thousands against disease.

Their greatest fear at the moment is of a measles epidemic. A few cases were discovered and the patients quickly isolated. There is not enough water to go around, and the doctors said this misfortune, with the consequent unsanitary conditions, might contribute to an epidemic.

This evening another trainload of injured came up from Santa Cruz Del Sur. When they arrived four who had started the trip were dead. Among the others some whose injuries were not especially serious had developed infections which made their cases urgent.

Santa Cruz Del Sur itself was a deserted wreck of a city. Where 3,500 persons lived last week there were only soldiers, sanitary workers and a few city officials salvaging what they could.

Here and there a spiral smoke hung over the ruins. It has been impossible to bury all the dead.

Despair is in the hearts of the survivors. This morning Francisco Gallo, 60, a prominent business man of Santa Cruz Del Sur, hanged himself.

Aside from the loss of buildings, small craft and similar property, the greatest damage was to the sugar crop.

ROOSEVELT IN BED WITH COLD

But President-Elect's Condition Improves, Fever Is Gone

BY W. B. RAGSDALE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt was improving today from the slight cold that confined him to his bed yesterday, but despite his bettered condition he remained in bed to rest and relax.

At the executive mansion it was said that he showed no trace of fever today and that his cold was much improved. He spent the day reading mail, dictating letters and resting.

Mrs. Roosevelt remained in Albany today, too, working at the stacks of mail that have come into the executive mansion since election day. She put aside her work for a brief shopping trip at noon, but resumed it in the afternoon.

She plans to return to New York tomorrow after attending church at the All Saints cathedral. Mr. Roosevelt expects to remain in the mansion, receiving no callers, until Tuesday.

No word came from the mansion to indicate whether a copy of the British note on war debts had been received there. The note, described as suggesting an extension of the moratorium which last year permitted war debt payments to be delayed for one year has been delivered at the state department and a copy of it telegraphed to President Hoover at Palo Alto. Another copy was said to have been sent to Mr. Roosevelt.

There was little discussion of war debts in the presidential campaign just ended. The Democratic platform simply recorded itself on the question as "we oppose cancellation of the debts owing to the United States by foreign nations."

In his speech at Pittsburgh, Mr. Roosevelt said he had concluded on the day after his nomination at Chicago that before any man entered his cabinet he must be given a pledge of absolute loyalty to the Democratic platform.

Senator Nye Hurt As Car Overturns

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 12. (AP)—Washington bound after his re-election Tuesday, Gerald P. Nye, senator from North Dakota, suffered a rib fracture, cuts and bruises today when his car skidded and overturned on a slippery highway. A companion was injured slightly.

The mishap occurred on a curve near Hudson, Wis., twenty miles from here. The 38-year-old junior senator, just chosen for his second full senate term, was taken to Dr. A. W. Livingstone's office at Hudson and then to a hospital here.

Dr. Livingstone attending Nye described his injuries as a fractured tenth rib on the left side, a shallow gash behind the right ear, a small cut on the left hand, and many scratches and bruises.

"The senator's condition generally is good," he said. "There was no injury to the chest cavity. The injuries beyond the broken rib are minor."

Appeals To Court So She Can Attend Husband's Funeral

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Victoria E. Hurd today obtained a court order to prevent her five stepchildren from interfering with her attendance Monday at the funeral of her husband, William F. Hurd, one time prominent Detroit lumber dealer.

Mr. Hurd, who was 82 years old, died Friday noon. Mrs. Hurd told Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson that her stepchildren had lured her husband away from her and have refused to let her see him, even denying her request to visit him when he was dying.

NEWMAN GETS 2 TOUCHDOWNS ON LONG RUNS

WOLVERINES OPPOSE MINNESOTA NEXT SATURDAY

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 12 (AP)—A stubborn Maroon line wavered twice under relentless pounding today, and the powerful undefeated Michigan football eleven, by a score of 12 to 0, added Chicago to its list of seven gridiron victims since October 1.

Huddled in blankets as snow eddied through Michigan stadium before a biting winter wind, 34,500 spectators cheered the Wolverines as they swept another barrier from their conference title hopes, and left only Minnesota as the final obstacle to an unbeaten season.

Chicago's attack never got started, but the Maroon line, schooled against Quarterback Harry Newman's passing and alert for Ted Petoskey's plunges, kept the Wolverines from piling up a greater margin. It was Newman who furnished the spark that never gave the Maroons a chance for offense, and it was Newman who raced a punt back 70 yards in the first period for a touchdown, and cleverly faked a passing formation to dash 28 yards for the second touchdown late in the fourth period. Place kick attempts after each touchdown failed.

Runs 70 Yards

Midway in the first period, Birney, Chicago guard, was forced to punt near midfield. Newman snared the ball on his own thirty yard line, sidestepped four Maroon tacklers as they closed in on him, and sped straight down the middle of the field to the Chicago goal. Ivan Williamson, Michigan captain, flung himself in the path of the last tackler to make Newman's run an unmolested one.

In the last minute of play, Newman once more outran the Chicago defense to advance 28 yards around end for Michigan's second touchdown. His second run came on third down after two forward passes had failed and when the Maroon defense was set for another overhead attempt. The quarterback faded away from the line of scrimmage as he had on previous forward passing plays and completely fooled the visitors. He was almost run out of bounds on the five-yard line, but managed to stay inside and make the score.

While Coach A. A. Stagg of Chicago had built a good defense for Newman's forward passes which allowed completion of only one out of ten overhead attempts, the visitors failed to stop the Wolverine star on the ground and went down to defeat largely through his individual prowess as a ball-carrier. Coach Harry Kipke of Michigan had a superb defense for the Chicago running attack which held them to two first downs and a net gain of 27 yards.

After Newman made his long run in the initial period, the two elevens battle on fairly even terms through two quarters, with long punts by Herman Everhardus keeping the ball in Chicago territory most of the time. The vaunted Michigan defense was too good for Chicago's attack which never was allowed to get started. The only factor which kept the score from mounting higher was the visitors' tight defense against forward passes.

The battle was devoid of breaks except that two forward passes were intercepted by each side, and Chicago never made even a semblance of a threat at the Wolverine goal. Only once during the game did the visitors have possession of the ball beyond midfield, and that came after a short punt which fell just over the 50-yard mark.

AGED FARMERS ARE MURDERED

Couple Shot to Death in Robbery at Hartford City, Indiana

Hartford City, Ind., Nov. 12. (AP)—Brutally slain, the bodies of aged Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Moore, farmers near here, were found sprawled on the floor of their home this morning.

A missing automobile and a rifle had been taken, establishing, police said, robbery as the motive for the killing. Moore was 67, his wife 65. The couple lived alone. Paul Macon, driver for a creamery company, this morning found their bodies, heads badly torn from shotgun fire from close range.

Mr. Moore, clothed as though he had just entered the house after attending to the milking, was found on the kitchen floor. Mrs. Moore was found in the living room.

There were no signs of a struggle in the house and no indication that it had been ransacked. The rifle and the automobile were the only articles known to be missing. Police expressed the opinion the murders occurred late yesterday.

A nephew, John Moore, 25, lived with the Moores for a time but left a week ago to return to his home in Illinois.

Shot To Death In Attempted Holdup

Detroit, Nov. 12 (AP)—George Papp, 33, was shot to death tonight by a lone robber who attempted to hold up a gasoline station at Telegraph road and Puritan avenue.

Papp, who had been unemployed for some time, was living with Florenz Menghin, 38, and his brother Adolph, 40, owners of the station, in a house nearby. At 8 p. m., an hour after the station had closed, a man came to the house and said he wanted to buy a tire. Papp went over to the station. A few minutes later Adolph Menghin heard his dog barking and went out to find Papp lying mortally wounded in the room where the tires were kept. The robber, whom he described as about 50 years old, ran out, threatened him with a gun, and drove off in an automobile.

HOOVER LAUDED FOR HIS RECORD

People Have Paid Popular Tribute, Says Sanders

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—President Hoover was pictured today by his campaign chairman as "one of our greatest chief executives" who was "beaten only by forces of fate beyond human control."

Chairman Sanders, of the Republican national committee, issued a statement saying the final election figures would show "that no defeated candidate in history ever received as great a popular tribute as did Herbert Hoover last Tuesday."

"No successful Democrat, prior to this year," Sanders added, "ever received in victory a popular vote even approaching that given the president in defeat."

Sanders' statement was issued as the slowly drifting in returns developed a striking similarity between the popular vote by which Hoover was defeated in 1932 and the total by which he was elected in 1928.

With about 8 per cent of the nation's polling precincts still missing, the Associated Press tabulations showed the popular vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt was 21,081,540 and for Hoover, 14,929,660.

Vote Of Confidence

Four years ago Hoover received a total of 21,392,190 votes to 15,016,443 for Alfred E. Smith's his Democratic opponent. His plurality was 6,375,747 as compared with Roosevelt's today of 6,151,880.

"The vote given the president," Sanders said, "is a vote of confidence in his ability and approval of his masterful administration during the most trying times in the nations history.

"It shows that even with a public disgruntled over hard times, with virtually every non-Republican faction in the country united against him, with some so-called Republican factions and individuals working against him for personal political gain, Herbert Hoover and the principles of the Republican party supplied a popular appeal that brought approximately fifteen million people to the polls to tell the world by their ballots that they believed in him and his administration.

"Despite a three year onslaught never before faced by any public official or political party, Herbert Hoover has received from his countrymen a beautiful tribute in appreciation of the great work he has accomplished."

Adding that the president is "honored and respected by millions of loyal American citizens," Sanders said he "may well be proud of this public response to his record."

All Dr. Outlaw could think of was tear gas.

Paris.—The daughter of Rasputin, celebrated monk whose occult influence swayed the last Russian court, cracks her whip here and uses her mysterious eyes resembling those of her father, to exert power over her subjects. She is a circus performer.

But when trumpets announce a appearance at the Cirque d'Hiver of Marie Rasputin, she doesn't step among roaring lions and snarling tigers, as might be expected of one of her lineage. Gaily dressed in exotic Russian style, she simply but majestically drives into the arena a group of pretty and docile ponies. Her act is tame in association with the mystic name that puts it over.

Tragedy has pursued the Rasputins since the night that Prince Felix Youssoupoff and his colleagues set out to execute the monk who they believed responsible for many of the political and social ills surrounding the Czar's family.

Likes Circus Life

"My sister was poisoned in Leningrad," Marie explains. "My mother, who is now 75 years old, and my brother are imprisoned in Siberia and forced to do hard labor. I am penniless and have to work for a living. I have tried dancing, but I do not like it as well as circus life. I prefer to be with my ponies."

Marie's husband, Solovieff, died nearly three years ago and she has two children to support.

"I hate political activity," she added. "My entire family was ruined by politics, and so was the royal family, whom we all loved very much. I want to keep clear of the past. But there is one thing ..."

The woman's remarkable eyes widened and her figure strained under some deep impulse.

"If Youssoupoff comes to this circus I shall kill him," she declared.

How Rasputin Died

The supposed slayer of her father now makes his home in Paris. It is almost exactly sixteen years since Youssoupoff and a group of Czarist conspirators lured the Black Monk to his death.

Rasputin, born in 1870 into the poverty and squalor of Russian peasant life, had risen through St. Petersburg society until he had become a royal favorite. The mystic and hypnotic power generally attributed to him was believed to have dominated both Czar and Czarina. And it was with the purpose of freeing the rulers from his sinister influence that Rusputin was slain.

Stories of that betrayal have been told many times—how the monk, whose scandalous love intrigues were common gossip, had gone to the home of a traitorous friend, and how he chatted for hours and drank quantities of poisoned wine with no apparent ill effects. And how one of the plotters, who by this time were half convinced that Rasputin was a devil incarnate, fically shot him dead.

Denies Gossip

"Those who hated my father did not know him," his daughter continued. "All these stories about his so-called orgies are vicious propaganda. Far from being a fiend, he was a saint. He was a simple country-man until he was brought to attention of the Czar's family because of his remarkable ability to effect cures. It is absurd to talk of the wrong my father did to the Czar. He was a great patriot and he loved the royal family, but he was misunderstood and betrayed. The history of the world turned with his death."

Marie speaks easily, devotedly, of her father. She calls him "Papa." In referring to his death she said:

"When Youssoupoff called at our apartment, Papa received him, opening the door himself, as usual, because he was so simple. Before leaving us on the last evening he came and kissed us goodby—my brother, my sister and myself—as was his custom. He told us he would return about midnight, and we went to bed.

Disappearance a Mystery

"The next morning we discovered he had not come back. We became worried and I personally telephoned to the prince, but he told me, in spite of all evidence, that he had not seen Papa. My brother telephoned to the police and then to the palace of the Czar. No one knew what had become of Papa.

"We were called after the discovery of the body. In spite of the manner in which the arms and legs were bound, he had freed one hand and made with it one of his most familiar gestures, that of the sign of the cross. His frozen body was shown to us in this supreme gesture. He had pardoned his aggressors."

HEAD X-RAYS MAY TRAP CRIMINALS

London—Fingerprints may no longer be necessary in identifying criminals. The new system now being tried out by Scotland Yard may do away with the old identification.

It consists of taking X-ray photographs of the heads of criminals. Dr. Poole, the inventor of the system, says that every head has its own special identifying marks.

In the bones of the face are a number of cavities which vary in size and shape from person to person. It is the difference in the location of these cavities, as well as the various shapes of heads, which will serve as an identification medium.

Marie Rasputin (shown above), the circus-performer daughter of Rasputin, Czarist Russia's storied "Mad Monk," has inherited the dark and brooding eyes of her father (lower left) who was shot dead by conspirators after—according to legend—he had drunk poisoned wine without ill effect.

BEER FOAMS UP TO START WAR OVER DRY LAWS

lift to it, and yet not intoxicating beyond any reasonable doubt. In the range between 2.75 per cent and 4 per cent lies that compromise, a beer that the thirsty would be glad to get, and yet which leaves enough doubt as to its intoxicating properties to get the benefit of court approval and avoid a possible veto by President Hoover, who is at heart a dry.

And How Soon?

Any alcoholic content up to 4 per cent is debatable, with equally reputable authority on both sides. Much of the light lager beer sold before the war was only around 3 per cent, and nearly all beer was under 4 per cent.

The O'Connor-Hull bill, defeated 228 to 169 last session but certain to come up early in this one, provided 2.75 per cent by weight, a three cents a pint tax, and sale in bottles only. Between the extreme wets, fighting for the limit at 4 per cent, and the drys, such a compromise seems likely.

But suppose such a bill is passed? Can you get your beer immediately? Maybe. Has your state a prohibition enforcement act like the Volstead act, prohibiting drinks of more than one-half of one per cent alcohol? The chances are two to one it has, for only 15 states are at this moment legally prepared to receive beer even if congress legalizes it. Before the past election there were six: Maryland, New York, Massachusetts, Nevada, Montana, Wisconsin. Nine states repealed their enforcement laws in the last election: Michigan, Louisiana, Washington, New Jersey, California, Oregon, Arizona, North Dakota, Colorado.

That makes 14 states which have repealed enforcement acts since national prohibition (Maryland never had any), and makes more than 40,000,000 people eligible to receive whatever congress offers them. But in 29 other states, even if the national law is repealed, the state law remains.

Furious fights are certain in the legislatures of many of these states to repeal state laws and get them in shape to profit by and national modification. The A. F. L. and the Crusaders for the wets, and the W. C. T. U. and Anti-Saloon League for the drys are already active here.

What of the States?

Bear in mind that so far as congress has power to legalize beer at all, it must do it on the theory that it is non-intoxicating. That brings up the next problem: if congress declares 4 per cent beer non-intoxicating, it is possible that practically all the state laws (which set a one-half of one per cent limit) will become unconstitional, being in conflict with a law of congress. And then all restrictions on this revivified beer are off.

Beer will get a big stimulus, in addition to the definite prod of the electorate, from the fact that the government needs money, and needs it badly. And aid beer would bring to unemployment or the grain surplus would be a help, too. Those factors are going to be important to fence-sitters in congress.

There will be literally scores of beer bills thrown into the hopper as soon as the gavel falls. In fact there are scores left over from last session. The judiciary committee will have to hold hearings, weed out those with very high or unlimited alcoholic content, and pick one which seems likely to get court approval. This will be fought bitterly both in committee and on the floor, for the drys are going to battle every inch of the way.

221 Drys Vanish

If modification should be blocked in the "lame duck" session, it is certain to go through in some form when the newly elected congress meets in response to an expected call from President-elect Franklin D. Roosesold after his inauguration March 4.

For the astounding overturn in the recent election completely changed the complexion of congress. The "lame duck" congress lines up: House, wet 188, dry 247; Senate, wet 32, dry 65. But the new congress will line up: House, wet 323, dry 26, undeclared 86; Senate, wet 61, dry 30, undeclared 5. Thus the drys lose 221 seats in the next House and 35 in the Senate, almost a complete reversal.

It is thus clear that in the next session House and Senate will both be Democratic and wet by good majorities.

The platform on which is was so overwhelmingly given power promised: 1. Repeal of the eighteenth amendment by proposing a repealer to "truly representative conventions in the states called to act solely on that proposal." 2. Pending repeal, immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the constitution."

With such a tremendous majority, the new congress is certain to modify in some way, even if the "lame duck" congress does not.

But at the roo' of the matter lies the eighteenth amendment. The Democratic position is clear. It implies complete repeal, turning back the whole matter to the states, and clearing the federal constitution of any specific mention of liquor. Its demand that the federal government use its power to "enable the states to protect themselves" against outside liquor traffic, does not imply any substitute amendment to take the place of the eighteenth.

Attorney-General Mitchell, however, believes that if a substitute amendment seemed to Congress necessary to give the fedral government power to protect dry states, such a substitute could be either written in one piece with the repealer or submitted at the same time. In that case the states could accept or reject either or both. Thus the form in which repeal is submitted is most important. It could be submitted in such form as to make adoption almost impossible.

While undoubtedly a drive for repeal will be made in the "Lame Duck" Congress, it has less chance than in the new one. Then there is almost certain to be a repealer, either with or without a substitute, submitted to the states.

However, the "bone drys" do not concede even this. Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the W. C. T. U., says she does not believe even the new Congress will achieve the two-thirds majority needed to submit repeal to the states. Varying degrees of wets seem assured of 323 in the next House, the drys 26, with 86 undeclared. That is plenty more than two-thirds. The Senate will be closer. The best estimate is 61 wet, 30 dry, 5 undeclared. Thus the wets need at least three of those undeclared senators to have their two-thirds.

It is in the states, after the preliminary battle of submission is won in Congress, that the bitterest fights will be fought.

For of course the adverse vote of 13 states can block any amendment to the Constitution, 36 states being necessary to ratify.

The dry strategy will be to put up as bitter a fight as possible against superior numbers in Congress, and then if beaten, to fall back to their intrenched position in the states.

NEXT: What may be expected if beer returns, in taxes, in employment, in the grain situation, in the realm of the racketeer?

CLAIM HOOVER FOR BEER BILL

Methodists Plan to Continue Prohibition Battle

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Organizations on both sides of the prohibition argument came forward today with new statements apropos of the election result.

The Methodist Board of Temperance restated its view that the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt "is in no sense a wet victory." This was coupled with an assertion that the churches would renew the fight against liquor, and that congressmen voting wet would be held responsible and their careers would be "adjudged by the consequences" of their votes.

The day also brought the first convention that President Hoover would sign a bill legalizing beer. This occurred in statement by the Federal Dispensary-Tax Reduction League, an organization seeking prohibition change. It said:

"We are informed by three officials very close to President Hoover that he will sign the beer bill it it comes before him."

The statement has had no confirmation as yet in any other quarter.

Rufus S. Lusk, national legislative officer of the Crusaders, a repeal organization, issued a statement saying:

"One cent a glass tax on beer will start an immediate golden flow of revenue into the United States treasury at the rate of over $600,000 a day or well over $200,000,000 a year. Tax it two cents a glass, and the revenue will be almost half a billion annually."

In the following states, Lusk's statement said, "beer may be sold the day the Volstead act is changed" because they "have repealed their state prohibition" laws:

Lusk added that "Illinois is getting ready to throw out its enforcement act" and "there is also agitation to repeal the state prohibition law of Pennsylvania."

Another prohibition development was the statement by Senator Walsh (D., Mont.), to newspapermen that he would support the party's platform on repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the Volstead act.

Questioned as to whether he thought there was sufficient wet strength in the present congress to modify the Volstead act at the short session, he answered:

"That is problematical."

Walsh at the same time expressed the opinion that legalization of beer within constitutional limits could be effected at the short session and said he would be for it.

He added, however, that he had not fixed in his mind the limit of alcoholic percentage that could be allowed in beer under the constitution although he remarked: "I believe it can be increased."

iods, the power of the Michigan attack and defense began to tell on Chicago, and the Maroons spent most of the time close to their own goal. It seemed only a question of time whether another Michigan touchdown would result from the almost certain threat of the Wolverines, and Newman's last-minute parade was spectacular, but to be expected.

Everhardus of Michigan outpunted Birney of Chicago by an average of 43 yards to 39 for the Maroon booter. Michigan returned 18 Chicago punts for a total of 117 yards, and 17 Michigan punts were runback 93 yards. Chicago completed one out of seven attempted forward passes for a gain of one yard. Michigan's lone complete pass gained 13 yards. Michigan made four first downs by rushing, and Chicago made two.

Today's game was the last home appearance for Captain Williamson and Newman, outstanding stars of the Michigan title parade this fall. Both have played three years on the Wolverine eleven. Williamson failed to pull in a forward pass today but distinguished himself on defense and intercepted a Chicago overhead try on the Maroon 24-yard line to give the victors their touchdown opportunity late in the game. Abe Marcovsky, playing his last home game at guard for Michigan, also intercepted a pass deep in Chicago territory.

With the Chicago battle out of the way, only Minnesota remains between Michigan and an undefeated and united season. If the Wolverines take the Gophers at Minneapolis next Saturday, they will be undisputed champions of the Western conference and must be given consideration for national titular honors. Their seven conquests this fall have been over Michigan State college, Northwestern, Ohio State, Illinois, Princeton, Indiana and Chicago.

Unemployment Relief Conference Proposes Road Program

A resolution, petitioning Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner, to request a loan of $2,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for financing a program of highway construction and improvement, was adopted at the closing session of the Unemployment Relief Conference in Munising yesterday.

The resolution reads as follows:

Whereas, at this meeting of the representatives of the counties of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan called for the purpose of consideration of the unemployment conditions and remedial measures for this territory, and

Whereas, it appearing that the conditions within the several counties are so serious that extreme privation must be anticipated to many of the unemployed if measures are not forthcoming beyond the financial abilities of the counties, and

Whereas, Section 1 C, Title 1, Relief of Destitution of Act 302 of 72nd Congress, appears to offer a possible solution and in a way that will bring needed work relief and at the same time valuable works to this area;

Therefore, Be It Resolved, That this assembly of counties, being the counties of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, petition the Hon. G. C. Dillman, state highway commissioner of Michigan:

First, that he plan and initiate a program of work to be performed on the trunkline highways of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan between January 1 and October 1, 1933, which would provide for the expenditure money for labor and items payable from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation funds in the amount of $2,000,000.

Second, that he cause this money to be requested from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the three month intervals for which requests are made to such Reconstruction Finance Corporation so that

$600,000 would be available and used from January 1 to April 1;

$700,000 would be available and used from April 1 to July 1;

$700,000 would be available and used from July 1 to October 1.

Third, that the money so requested when received be used for the class of work known as "betterments" and "construction" under the Maintenance Division, such work to be selected and handled so to provide the maximum of labor and in the manner in which betterments have heretofore been handled in this state.

Fourth, that such sums be apportioned between the counties having regard to the ability to utilize the funds for the purposes contemplated in said act of Congress and the ability to use such money constructively.

Fifth, that said Grover C. Dillman, highway commissioner, be requested to cause a petition for such funds and agreement to retire said funds as is specified in Section 1 C, Title 1 of said Act, 302.

Sixth, that whereas each county will by this procedure be estopped from receiving from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation direct funds to care for the relief of this portion of the unemployed which it is contemplated to care for on these work relief projects and because of the fact that weather or other causes may preclude operation at times and require direct relief therefor, we further request that when and if the occasion occurs that it be necessary to care for families by direct relief whose needs are estimated to be cared for in this program, said Grover C. Dillman be requested to enter into agreement with the respective counties under the terms of Federal and State statutes to provide so much of the allotted money for direct relief as shall be necessary; money so applied to direct relief to be reimbursed to the State from the funds derived from fees on motor vehicles and motor fuels.

In making this petition, the representatives of the various counties pledge themselves to recommend to their Boards of Supervisors:

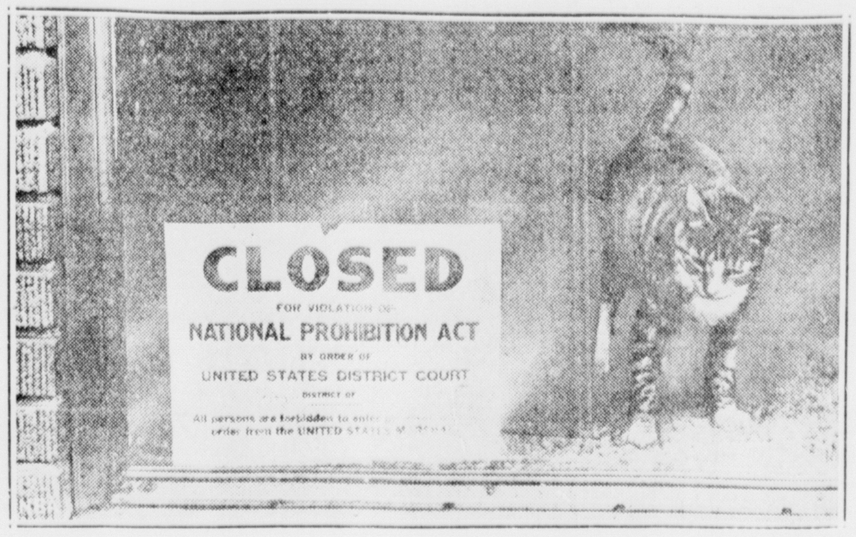
First, that those items of supervision known as overhead in state highway maintenance contracts be furnished by the counties without cost to the State.

Second, that those items of cost known as equipment rental in the state highway maintenance contracts be furnished by the counties without cost to the State.

Third, that materials and supplies, the cost of which cannot be paid from funds provided by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be provided by the counties and on the understanding that reimbursement therefor will not be made by the State until such times as the State has money available for such purpose.

It is represented that this petition contemplates by the program herein laid out the employ of 8,000 men in the Upper Peninsula on needed highway "betterments" and "construction" in a manner considered practical by the technical representatives of the counties, and that the figures herein stated are the result of an estimate of the funds practicable of use in State trunkline force account work in each county.

DRY AGENTS' PADLOCK IMPRISONS TABBY



When federal marshals closed and padlocked a former speakeasy in Newark, N. J., they unwittingly imprisoned an old habitue of the place—a big cat which had hidden out during the closing ceremony. Tabby made known its plight by promenading in the window as shown here until passers-by appealed to U. S. authorities. Finally, from Trenton, 40 miles away, came a federal marshal with a key, and Tabby came out—for repeal!

IF WORTH ONE CENT, HE IS WORTH $1,000

Portland, Ore. (NEA)—The four pennies jingling in George Hopkins, Jr.'s pockets spell either one thousand dollars or nothing. If he arrives home without a cent he receives nothing. If he has at least one cent he receives $1,000 from his father.

Last January, George bet his father, the owner of several Alaska canneries, that he could tour the United States on less than $300. His dad said that he would give George $1,000 if he visited every state capital and returned with one of the original $300.

George has passed through Boise, the last of the 48 state capitals. He has hitch-hiked almost 16,000 miles and he has a steamer ticket from Portland to Seattle.

The last leg of his journey from Puget Sound to Skagway, his home, will have to be made on the large capital of three cents, all he has to spend of the $300. He must save that fourth penny.

Rotarians Visit Wisconsin Clubs

Acting upon the invitation of Frank Carter, governor of Tenth District Rotary, the Escanaba Rotary club will be represented on the programs of the Rhinelander and Eagle River Rotary clubs Monday by Herman Gessner, John A. Lemmer and John J. Bartella.

The three Escanabans are driving to Wisconsin early Monday to present a Chippled Children's program at Rhinelander Monday noon. They wil go from Rhinelander to Eagle River for a joint evening session at the home of Governor Carter.

All three will appear on the programs of the two clubs. Mr. Lemmer will deliver the principal talk while Mr. Gessner, who is chairman of the Escanaba Crippled Children's committee, and who is prominently identified with the work in the district, will present the "Escanaba Plan" for carrying on work in behalf of the handicapped child.

This plan has been adopted by a large number of Michigan and Wisconsin clubs and is of widespread interest.

ENGADINE

Woman Burned

Engadine, Mich.—Mrs. Ruth Hastings was badly burned about the face and hands, also the lower part of her body today, when gasoline which was being used to wash clothing, became ignited, causing an explosion. The flames from the gasoline also spread to the framework of the sun parlor where the work was being done, but no great damage was done to the building. It is thought that the explosion was caused by the fumes coming in contact with a spark from the electric motor on the washing machine.

Mrs. Hastings was immediately taken to the Newberry hospital for treatment.

Boy Shoots Stepfather

Sault Ste. Marie—Reenacting scenes from a wild west movie, John Chervinskas, 15, shot and critically wounded his step-father, Adam, 40, at his home three miles east of Dafter at eight o'clock last night.

Chervinskas was in the War Memorial hospital today with a bullet in his side. The bullet entered the right side and passed almost through his body, piercing one lung.

The shooting occurred in the Chervinskas kitchen where Mr. and Mrs. Chervinskas were making sauer kraut. The boy, talking about a movie he had seen, was demonstrating to his father how clever one of the actors was with a gun. He picked up the rifle and in showing his father "how the cowboys shoot" fired the gun.

Has Rabbit Fever

Sault Ste. Marie—For the first time tuleramia (rabbit fever), has made its appearance in the Sault. Reports of laboratory tests, received here yesterday, indicated that Bert Willette, 700 Cedar street, is a victim of the disease.

At present Willette's condition is favorable, Dr. F. J. Moloney, attending physician, said. The doctor said, however, that the disease runs a long course and that the only treatment is to keep the body resistance as high as possible.

How Should We Call This?

Dear Editor:

The Constitution of the United States guarantees a vote for every citizen in every place of the United States except in Bark River. On about dozen Socialist votes only two were cast. Few Socialists made their complaints already, while others were wondering where their votes went to.

The Bark River board of election has a dark record for the last two years. Two years ago Ed Zastrow made all kinds of complaints. Last spring I was forced to do the same thing. Not long ago Torval Strom asked for recounts of Bark River precincts.

How should we call that?

THOS. KAHLOW NOW IN RUSSIA

Former Escanaban Works as Chemical Engineer

Another former Escanaban, Thomas J. Kahlow, Dunkirk, N. Y., only son of John Kahlow, 504 South Eleventh street, has entered the employ of the Russian Soviet government as a chemical engineer, and is now in Zlatoust, Russia. George Germaine, son of William Germaine, South Eleventh street, the other former resident, has been employed as a mining engineer in the Ural mountain region for the last couple years.

Tom Kahlow was born in Escanaba 39 years ago. After graduating from the Escanaba high school, he attended the University of Wisconsin and the University of Chicago, later taking employment with the Ludlum Steel company at Dunkirk, N. Y. He and his wife, the former Miss Dorothy Mayflower Bradford of Kinderpost, Mo., accompanied by their ten-year-old daughter, Mary Jane, left for Russia last August. Mary Jane was born in St. Francis hospital here May 13, 1922.

Owing to the fact that there are no suitable living quarters provided in the frontier community where her husband is employed, Mrs. Kahlow and her daughter are residing at present at Cheliyabinsk, known as the Gateway to Siberia.

In a letter sent to relatives here Mrs. Kahlow describes conditions in Russia and also various places of interest they visited in England, Germany and Russia, while enroute from America to Cheliyabinsk.

While in Moscow they visited the famous Kremlin, which now houses government offices. She describes the costly furnishings in the late Czar's palace, and told of visits to the schools, parks, recreational centers and other institutions founded and operated by the Soviet government.

Mr. Kahlow is working in a large government laboratory experimenting in alloys. He and his family will remain in Russia for two years.

DOG TRIAL COSTS LOSER $237.45

Birmingham, Ala., (NEA)—A suit for possession of a black, blue and tan hound dog, valued at $500, has cost Gordon Jones $237.45 in court costs and the loss of the dog.

Jones had the dog and K. E. Bradford brought suit, saying that the dog had been stolen from him and that the thief had traded the dog to Jones, who had no knowledge of the theft.

Jones said that the dog was purchased in Florida and that it didn't belong to Bradford, because the hound wouldn't answer his call. Bradford pointed out that Jones had had the dog too long and that it had forgotten the call of its previous master.

Huge toads, six inches long and three inches wide, were discovered in South America by Dr. C. W. Parsons, of the University of Glasgow.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF "A CHANGE"

ONE of the most encouraging aspects of the post-election situation is that the people of the nation, including business and industrial leaders, are showing renewed confidence in the future, despite the dark prophecies of the calamity howlers previous to the election.

The Democratic victory has been so decisive that it leaves no room for argument. There is none of the disgruntlement that is usually evident after a close contest.

To the masses, the farmers harassed by low prices and farm mortgages and the unemployed who want jobs more than anything else, the realization of the great power of their ballot seems to have given a new lease on life. They have wanted a change, and our system of government has made it possible for them to get it by peaceful means.

That there is a certain psychology to this desire for a change has been apparent right here in Escanaba. An Escanaba garage, which had not sold an automobile for a month or more, reports that three jubilant Democrats came in Thursday, two days after election, and bought three "new jobs."

It is altogether possible that all this country has needed is some kind of a change. The fear psychology, which has gripped the people of the nation, has caused them to refrain from buying to meet their normal needs. They have put off doing this and that until conditions change. Those who have felt depressed by economic and social conditions, those who felt that they did not amount to much after all in the great scheme of worldly things, and all the others who had given up hope, have been made chesty by the fact that they have played their part in bringing about a peaceful revolution through united action at the polls. There is more or less of the rebel in all of us, and when we triumph over our supposed oppressors, we assume a brighter outlook on life in general.

FULLER LOSES OUT

THERE can be no quarrel over the impressive victory of the Democratic party throughout the nation on Tuesday, for it shows that the great mass of voters in this nation were bent upon getting the change, which they sincerely felt was needed.

But one of the sad features of such a election landslide is that it thrusts out of public service a certain number of outstanding men. It is all in the game of politics, of course, but in some respects in is quite unfortunate.

Without intending to be uncomplimentary to his victorious Democratic opponent, we view with regret the passing out of the Hon. Oramel B. Fuller, one of the most faithful public servants the state of Michigan has ever had.

For 24 years, our own O. B. Fuller has served as auditor general, in which capacity, because of his strict devotion to his duties, he came to be affectionally nicknamed "the watchdog of the treasury." For many years, too, he received the endorsement of both the Republican and Democratic parties, which is proof of his tremendous personal popularity in this state.

O. B. Fuller has made a good record at Lansing.

RADICAL VOTE SMALL

IN CONTRAST with the pre-election claims of the Socialists that they would poll about two and a half million votes for their ticket, returns from Tuesday's ballot indicate that Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, received less than a million votes.

This makes Thomas' percentage of the total votes cast less than 2.5 per cent, as compared with the high water mark of the Socialist vote in 1912 when Eugene V. Debs obtained about 6 per cent. What influenced the Socialists to become enthusiastic over their prospects was the favorable indication of the Literary Digest poll. But since the Literary Digest distributes its straw ballots to automobile owners and telephone subscribers, it is natural that Norman Thomas would receive a large percentage in the straw poll than he actually received in the election.

Thomas received much praise and support from college professors and students, or the so-called white-collared proletariat and intellectuals, and this class would be well represented in the Digest poll. The unemployed and distressed farmers, dispossessed of an automobile or telephone, were not given a chance to vote in the Literary Digest poll, and consequently their intentions were not forecast. It is for this reason, too, that Roosevelt got a better vote in some states than the straw vote indicated.

Although the unemployed and the farmers attended Socialist political rallies about the country in large numbers, they apparently made up their minds that the best way to make an immediate change was to vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt rather than for Thomas. Down in their hearts, they may be wishing for the revamping of the capitalistic system and other governmental reforms, but they were not in a mood to wait fifty or more years for them. Undoubtedly, they figured that a little change now is better than a drastic change in the distant future.

Other minor parties received little support in the election. The Communist vote in the upper peninsula was negligible, for instance. In Delta county, the Socialist candidate for congress received only 50 votes. The high sounding demands presented to public officials by Communist agitators, their hunger marches and other mass demonstrations would lead the public to believe that the movement was growing in strength in this country. They are still small in numbers, but big in noise.

U. P. UNREWARDED

SELF-RELIANCE has received no reward as far as the upper peninsula is concerned with regard to the unemployment relief problem. The upper peninsula, contrary to the policy pursued by lower Michigan communities, has endeavored to take care of the financing of unemployment relief projects through its own means, while the Detroit and other communities at the outset threw out their arms to beg for assistance from the state and federal governments.

Unquestionably, the industrial centers have had a greater burden falling upon them in the way of unemployment, but it is also true that their ability to pay is much greater than that of our upper peninsula communities. Now that the upper peninsula communities have exhausted their resources and are no longer able to carry the unemployment relief burden, they find that it is very difficult to secure outside aid.

At the unemployment relief conference held in Munising Friday, it was revealed that there are at least 24,000 men unemployed in the upper peninsula. It also became apparent that the strict provisions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, with regard to loans, offers somewhat an obstacle to the plan for quick mobilization of relief forces. The difficulty of finding public works projects, which come under the self-liquidating classification, has presented a problem for some counties. The proposal presented by State Highway Commissioner Grover C. Dillman that the upper peninsula be considered as a single unit in applying for a loan of two million dollars, however, appears as the most likely plan and offers encouragement to the upper peninsula that substantial relief will be given to our unemployed.

THE TEARS OF SELF

There is no grief that you have known
That living has not made my own;
Of all my grief, of what design,
I doubt if one is only mine.
Remember this, with loads to bear:
Life is a brotherhood of care.

Perhaps those tears I weep so well
Would soothe my sorrow if they fell
For others more, and less for me.
Yes, like a raindrop in the sea
The tears of self, the tears that might
Have healed some other heart tonight—

God, healing his, have lightened mine.
There is no grief, of what design,
That I have ever borne alone.
There is no sorrow quite my own.
Remember this, with loads to bear:
Life is a brotherhood of care.

Week-end Murder

(By NEA Service) BY GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The story opens with a prologue in which a murder is committed by a homicidal maniac. Later he boards a train for Long Island, thinking of the pleasant week-end he is to have there. The name of the murderer is not disclosed.

The scene shifts to the Long Island home of LINDA and TOM AVERILL, married three years and much in love. Linda announces that instead of three guests over the week-end they are to have five. The guests will be: COUSIN AMOS PEABODY, elderly, distant relative of Linda's who was in New York on business and invited himself to visit the Averills; CAPTAIN DE VOS, handsome Belgian representing a European perfume manufacturer with whom Averill hopes to do business; MR. STATLANDER, middlewestern manager of the firm Averill works for; MARVIN PRATT, former suitor of Linda's whom she has not seen for several years, and LIAM SHAUGHNESSEY, Irish writer on a lecture tour.

The weather is fearfully hot. The guests arrive and Linda, dressing for dinner, has a disturbing feeling that something unpleasant is going to happen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

LINDA rather forgot her manners at dinner. She admitted it afterwards. Of course, with the charming Mr. DeVos on her right, it was hard to pay correct attention to stolid Mr. Statlander on her left. But that did not excuse her noticeable absorption in the young Belgian, with his disarming air of naivete which argued him so thoroughly experienced.

Once, in fact when she had quite forgotten to "turn" the conversation she caught herself away from him so openly that a dark flush appeared on Statlander's expressionless face and he muttered with unexpected savagery, "Don't let me interrupt you, Mrs. Averill!"

Linda stared in amazement. After all, civilized beings rarely expressed their pique so flatly. But she ignored the bad-tempered sally and with all her native wit and charm strove to regain lost ground, to convince this surly, self-important person of her interest in him and his opinions. She succeeded in launching him on what seemed intended to be a tale of foreign adventure. It consisted, however, of long drawn out details concerning the assembling of much technical apparatus for an expedition into Africa. His mind ran to efficiency, even in sports, and to listen to the catalog of equipment was rather a penance to Linda's untechnical mind.

It was DeVos who rescued her from the further sin of wandering attention. Across the table, he cut in with a quick question and exclaimed with pleasure over the coincidence that he, too, knew that part of Africa.

"But, yes, of course!" His accent gave piquant emphasis to the ordinary words. "I have traveled that territory — for business and for pleasure. Unspoiled still — not all of Africa can say that now!"

"Africa? You're talking about Africa? What part of it is that?"

From the other end of the table Marvin Pratt's voice boomed out, disconcerting little Dolly Alger who thought she had his spellbound interest in her description of last year's Fourth of July regatta. At once the Irishman was alert and even Cousin Amos began to show, if not interest, at least less indifference. For the first time the conversation became general and went forward with the natural animation which no hostess can ever artificially drum up. Linda relaxed with relief. At last—that did seem to get them started!

* * *

AT ease for the moment, she studied her guests. Marvin down near Tom. She must be especially nice to him later to make up for giving the other men the preferential seats at dinner. Marvin had changed. That thick crown of deep chestnut hair, with its symmetrical natural wave, was heavily marked now by gray. His eyebrows were as heavy, his undershot jaw as noticeable as ever, but the rich, pleasant voice and flash of white teeth in a rather wide smile suggested more polish than he once had had. He really was almost distinguished-looking. Yet still there was about him that air of restraint. Naturally a man of enormous physical vitality, his vigorous heartiness suggested stronger forces rigorously chained in. Knowing the sudden heat and passion of the man when stirred, she wondered into what form of "uplift" Marvin now released some of that violent physical strength and craving for action. When last she had heard of him he had deliberately "lost" himself in some remote part of India. Fortunately he had money to indulge his fanatic fervor for studying conditions at first hand and for crusading violently against the powers of evil and indolence.

Across from Marvin was the Irishman. A contrast if ever she had seen one! In that mobile, charming, graceless face she read no hint of discipline or will. Weak he must be with that chin and those lovely, pointed fingers. Delightful, alive, entertaining, he undoubtedly was, judging from the chorus of encouragement with which his simplest sallies were greeted. Even Tom was forgetting his responsibilities in charmed delight over the great overgrown boy of a man. Linda wondered what he'd been talking about to bring to all those faces that look of amusement, enchantment, surprise.

* * *

NOW the tossed ball of conversation had been flung the length of the table and all were keeping it in the air. Africa—curious that that one word should prove the one to set them afire! She caught herself back. Mr. Statlander held the floor. She would not repeat her earliest mistake. He was fairly launched on a travelog. Linda suspected that the man had no small talk; with him it was the center of attention or nothing. She followed him to India and there the Irishman suddenly cut in with an apostrophe to Gandhi and what seemed the start of a hymn of praise to all rebels, leaders and prophets of the rights of submerged peoples.

"Now the fat is in the fire!" breathed Linda. A look of despair flashed between her and her husband as Cousin Amos, ominously clearing his throat, plunged with scandalized conservatism into the very heart of a glowing period.

"Right-thinking people"—Linda recognized the pompous phrase and as from a distance heard Cousin Amos call upon all the gods of stability and established order. He paused not for a reply because he was not conscious of there being any to make. He was not discussing. With definite, unequivocal clearness he was reproving this impertinent upstart. All of Cousin Amos' limited experience had confirmed his belief in his own rightness and that of the opinions to which he had been born. Now Shaughnessey had doubly sinned in his choice of enthusiasms and in assuming that others shared them.

Linda winced as Cousin Amos expressed the contempt of the Brahmin for the outlaw. If ever she went Bolshevik, she had often thought, his would be the responsibility. He could not be said to be intolerant of thought more liberal than his own. He simply wiped all shades of it out of existence.

His offense was not lessened by the fact that he once called the other "Mr. Shanahesh" and twice "Mr. O'Shea," nor that he brought his discourse to a close by stating firmly:

"In fact, my dear sir, your comment shows clearly an undisciplined and confused mind—exactly the mentality, I may say, which has demanded that the immeasurably superior Anglo-Saxon race exert a salutary supervision over the childishly incompetent peoples—for their own good, needless to say, for their—"

"For their own good, is it?" roared the Irish giant, unable apparently to endure Cousin Amos' trick of climactic repetition. "And what do you say to massacring rivers of blood and innocent children murdered in their beds and starving—"

"I say nothing, nothing," said Cousin Amos primly. "In fact, I decline to discuss such absurd generalities with one incapable—"

But his voice was a feeble wailing on the wind, for his opponent had paused for no reply to his rhetorical question. Recovered from his first shock, Lian Shaughnessey plunged with gusto into the battle. Logic he had none nor, Linda observed, any more tolerance than Cousin Amos. But the sweep of his rich vocabulary and his poetic fervor—to say nothing of a voice which under the stress of excitement rivaled the Bull of Bashan's—swept the discussion from his own restless island straight across Europe to the no less restless East. By sheer spate of words he might have won, had he not been so unwise as to quote disparagingly a supposed official order to English troops in India.

INSTANTLY he met flat contradiction from Statlander, speaking with the curt brevity of a military officer to an inferior or of a schoolmaster—and a bad-tempered one—to the class dunce. The direct challenge of personal knowledge (the man did seem to know India and recent happenings there!) might have checked Shaughnessey had not his temper been lashed so high.

Undaunted, he took on this new opponent, roaring down with fiery invective the rain of concrete facts with which the middle western assailed him. At last Marvin Pratt, whose gathering frown had been turned first toward one contestant, then to the other, broke in with the skill of a trained speaker and, after a moment of out-roaring each, managed to win momentary silence and skirted the political issue neatly, focusing attention on an anecdote of the Khyber Pass and his own experiences in the Himalayas. Tom deferentially asked Statlander for the exact height of a newly discovered peak and the bait worked. Peace was established and Linda felt rather weak.

"Why will Cousin Amos start setting people right on the slightest provocation?" she thought, remembering similar unhappy occasions. "However, both these men egged him on. First I thought they all had travel in common and now I can add something else—a terrible temper."

Then she remembered that one voice remained unheard. She turned, half-laughing, to the man on her right. He was looking not at her, but at the still smoldering combatants, and utter contempt, unmasked, etched his finely cut features into repellant harshness. Feeling her glance, he turned, but without attempting to wipe from his face that contemptuous look, we must assume her agreement with all that it said of her guests, and included with equal scorn the oratorical Cousin Amos, visibly miffed and now limiting his audience to his dinner partner, and the Celt whose once ingratiatingly boyish face had gone white and bitter with the temper of his argument.

"Over things lower than human," said that gentle, slightly accented voice beside her, its quiet syllables dripping like ice into her brain. "These—animals—serfs—in India. I have seen them!" He shrugged. "Their rights! England is too kind. They did things better in our colonies—before the war—in Africa!"

What did he mean? The Belgian Congo? From Linda's childhood flashed a sudden memory of horror . . . the rubber country . . . slavery . . . unspeakable torture . . . oppression beyond bearing. What was her charming Continental! She repressed a shiver. As much as the violent anger of those heated, quarrelsome men she would fear this man's cold, deadly composure.

WILL COUNT VOTES

The election commissioners were held up on the count of the ballots for Alger county this week when Judge of Probate R. W. Nebel discovered that the returns from precincts 1 and 2 in the city of Munising and precinct No. 2 in Munising township, precincts No. 2 in Limestone and No. 2 in Au Train had not properly made reports to the county clerk. The 1931 legislature enacted a law concerning the sealing of the returns to the clerk, that is, that each package should be sealed with a red gummed state seal as well as with sealing wax. This was a technical error. The commissioners wired the attorney general's department for information and yesterday afternoon received word to count the returns as they were sent in.

PASTORS WILL AID ROLL CALL

Humanitarian Service of American Red Cross To Be Told

Pastors of Escanaba churches at their services today will tell of the splendid humanitarian work of the American Red Cross as a means of cooperating with the annual Roll Call, which got under way Armistice Day.

The Northwest Fruit company was the first commercial institution to report 100 percent on the roll call. Favorable response is reported by all the canvassers, who are engaged in soliciting funds to support the Red Cross.

For more than half a century the American Red Cross has been the official relief agency of the government and the people to provide relief in disaster. It has administered relief in more than 1,200 disasters in the United States requiring the expenditure of some $68,900,000. It has developed a carefully devised plan of procedure, practical and helpful, and a trained staff of relief workers. It has the confidence of the people, the gratitude of those who have benefited by its services.

Because of the long and effectiv experience of the Red Cross in th field of emergency relief, demand for its services have multiplied During the past several years o world-wide economic upheaval, witl attendant increasing unemployment and consequent suffering to the people of our country, the Red Cross has been called upon to take part in the community and nation-wide programs to alleviate distress. It has for the time being undertaken extraordinary emergency measures on a scale it has never attempted in peace times. From relief in disasters created by the elements it has been summoned to action in situations in which disaster and economic paralysis have combined to intensify suffering. The great drought-relief program of 1930-31, extending into 23 states, would not have been necessary on so large a scale had not the cash and credit resources of the farmers been depleted by a series of "bad years."

And now, today, in the crisis of unemployment growing out of the world economic dislocation, the Red Cross is engaged in helping to feed and clothe "needy and distressed people" throughout the nation. It is providing a substantial foundation of the nation's relief program. By the act of congress it was given the task of transforming 85,000,000 bushels of wheat into flour for human consumption and feed for livestock, and 500,000 bales of cotton into garments, and distributing these necessities to those in want. Up to mid-October flour had gone into the homes of more than four million families, and more than 33,000,000 yards of cloth had been provided for garments for more than three million families.

Judge Carl Smith Talks In Newberry

Judge Carl H. Smith of Bay City was the speaker of the evening at the annual Armistice Day banquet given by the Hugh Allan McInnis Post, American Legion, in the community building on Friday night. Judge Smith who was wounded "over there" talked of the future of the country, of the faith he had in it, of the futility of war and of the need of a serious application of high principals to the practice of citizenship. His talk was greatly appreciated.

Armistice Day was well observed in this town. Starting with a memorial service in the school during the forenoon the charity football game in the afternoon attracted a fair crowd in spite of splitting snow and cold weather. The game was played between the alumni and the high schol team, resulting in a 26-0 score for the youngsters. A fine sum of $110 was realized for the Children's Poor Fund. While this is considerably less than the amount taken in last year the committee is grateful for it and it will go a long ways towards supporting the hot meal project by which, last year, around 100 children were given a hot meal at noon.

In the evening the Legion held their annual ball. This was sucessful in every way. The ladies of the Swedish Lutheran church prepared and served the banquet.

RAID GOFF PLACE

Nine members of the local conservation force staged a raid at the Goff place north of Newberry, on Friday, dropping down on all the cabins at about the same time. At the "Temple" they found two fresh beaver hides, nine rat skins and both fresh and canned venison. E. L. Marsh, caretaker, took the blame for killing the venison and will appear before Justice Kenzie on Monday to answer to the charge.

District Warden Julius Thorson stated that this group of men have given his department trouble for several years. Gilbert B. and E. A. Goff are Saginaw hotel people who own several thousand acres of land in the northern part of Luce county much of it near the mouth of the Two Heart. They have plenty of money, the warden states, and have many friends throughout the state and locally. From time to time reports that the younger members of the family have been dealing with furs illegally (the family operates a fur farm) have reached the officials and several times arrests have been made. Much of their land is 40 miles or more from Newberry and is difficult to watch. Warden Thorson reports that his department does not believe in making arrests of the poor shacker and trapper and allowing the more fortunate to get away with game law violations.

PAINFULLY BURNED

Mrs. Ruth Hastings, postmistress at Engadine, was brought to the local hospital on Friday afternoon suffering from painful burns. Mrs. Hastings was washing garments in gasoline and ran them through an electric wringer. It is believed that a spark set off the fluid. Mrs. Hastings had the presence of mind to roll on the wet grass and put out the flames but not until her clothing was nearly burned from her. She is reported as resting comfortably.

SPINELESS BANDIT

Cincinnati, O.—Judges Otis R. Hess and Al L. Leubbers received a little practical experience in connection with jailing people recently. The two judges along with six other people were trapped between the first and second floors of the city hall when the elevator became "stuck." Traffic and police courts were held up for half an hour while an electrician frantically searched for the trouble.

Two Arrested As Robbery Suspects

Police reported the arrest of two suspects in the house robbery which occurred at the T. L. Powers home, 112 First avenue south. The two youths have been arraigned, and will have their hearing Tuesday in justice court.

The articles taken from the home were valued at about $200, including silverware and jewelry. Some of the silverware has been recovered. It was found in nearby yards, where the thief dropped it as he ran in making his escape.

Iron was once so valuable that the ancient Greeks once gave a lump of it as one of the prizes in their great athletic games.

Plenty Of Grouse Left In Peninsula

Lansing—The recent grouse season in the upper peninsula, the first in years, apparently did not deplete the partridge supply north of the Straits of Mackinac to any appreciable extent, in the opinion of H. D. Ruhl, in charge of the Game Division of the Department of Conservation.

The number of hunters was relatively small and a cursory survey through the northern peninsula during the ten days following the close of the season indicated large numbers of birds, Mr. Ruhl said.

Ruhl spent nearly three weeks in the peninsula, both during the open season and immediately following it. During that time he visited several sections and found plenty of grouse in the areas suited for them.

Prairie chickens north of the Straits are becoming abundant again and although many were taken during the open season, they seem to be almost as plentiful after the season as before. These birds are reported to be more generally abundant in that section of the state than in the southern peninsula, and according to local residents are continuing to increase.

Spruce grouse or "fool" hens are protected and appeared more abundant, but still not common in more areas. Unfortunately, a few hunters did not distinguish them from ruffed grouse, although these birds are much darker colored than partridges and are very tame.

Persons willing to house any of the delegates are urged to notify Mr. Lemmer.

BIG GAME "SCARING"

Evansville, Ind.—Harold Spears went to Glacier National Park on his vacation. He was not prepared to do any big game hunting, but he had quite an experience with two bears. Spears and his wife were camped for the night when the two animals walked in on them. Spears had no trusty rifle, so he grabbed a skillet and pounded on it with a spoon until the bears beat a retreat.

ONE GRAM of RADIUM CONTAINS ENOUGH POWER TO LIFT A 28,000 TON BATTLESHIP 100 FEET IN THE AIR.

THE LIFE of radium is 20,000 years, and during that length of time the electrical discharges emitted by one gram of radium would create sufficient horsepower to lift even the Woolworth building high into the air.

WORLD WAR soldiers often carried equipment weighing considerably more than 100 pounds, yet the ability of the armored knight to carry on under the weight of a 60-pound load still excite wonder.

ALTHOUGH there are blue-colored fowls, such as the Blue Andalusian, no blue pigment is known to exist in the feathers of domestic fowls. The blue color is produced by the black pigment granules being of a peculiar shape and being laid down in such a manner that a blue effect is given instead of black, or black and white. Neither is there any white pigment in the feathers. The lack of color appears to be due to air spaces in the substance of the feather by which light is reflected and deflected until all color is lost.

Woman's Chorus Giving Concert Friday Evening

The Escanaba Woman's Chorus will appear in concert and instrumental numbers at the Bethany Lutheran church, the evening of Nov. 18, at 8 o'clock.

The Chorus is a growing community organization, desirous of serving Escanaba in a cultural medium. Its offering will be without door admission, but because of the heavy expense entailed in the purchase of music as well as some outlay involved in presenting programs, it has been decided to ask for voluntary contributions, which, it is hoped, wil be as sizeable as possible.

No idea of profit is intended, the committee in charge emphasizes, the sole aim of the Chorus is the promotion of good music in the community. It is believed that the support of the public will be given the Chorus in view of its previous worthwhile achievements in this direction, and that through this support the Chorus will be able to continue its material existence as an organization.

The program follows:

"Lift Thine Eyes," from the "Elijah" ..... Mendelssohn
"The Lord Is My Shepherd" ..... Schubert
Escanaba Woman's Chorus
"How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" ..... Liddle
"He Shall Feed His Flock," from the "Messiah" ..... Handel

Franklin School Still Leads in Dental Health

With more than 40 per cent of the entire school enrollment on the dental honor roll, according to the October dental report just issued by the school system, the Franklin building is shown to be still leading the other elementary schools in dental health. Each room at the Franklin added one or more names to the class room dental honor roll during the month.

Miss Dorothy Rose's third grade room with 61 per cent of the pupils in good dental condition is shown to head the list not only for the Franklin but for all the class rooms in the city.

The names of those added during the month are:

Kindergarten—Billy Bissell.

First grade—Forrest Kallin, William Lord, Jack Glavin, Ellen Flath.

Second grade—Donna Sargent.

Fourth grade—Stuart Peterson, Hazel Peterson.

Fifth grade—Georgetta Chapekis.

Normal Training Room—Mary Chapekis, Thelma Flink, Suzanne Nearman.

Sixth grade—Betty Logan, Donald Goulais.

A tablespoon of lemon juice added to the cold water in which celery is soaked will make it crisp.

Personality of Mrs. Roosevelt Is Outstanding

(Editor's Note:—A childhood which Mrs. Roosevelt herself described as "odd" and a training that included war work, nursing and being a dutiful wife to a government official, formed the background for the distinctive personality she undoubtedly is. In this final article of the series, Lorena Hickok shows how that personality asserts itself.)

By LORENA HICKOK
(Copyright 1932, By The Associated Press)

New York, Nov. 11 —(AP)— The next mistress of the White House thinks people are going to get used to her ways, even though she does edit a magazine, wears $10 dresses, and drive her own car.

Incidentally, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt does not herself own an automobile—only a third of one.

It is a blue roadster that belongs to the furniture factory of which she is one-third owner. Sometimes she borrows it, and she loves to drive it—fast.

The Roosevelts do not keep a car in New York City, and while Mrs. Roosevelt is here, the first three days of each week, she takes taxicabs or travels on busses to and from school and to keep her engagements.

Much of the time she walks with a long, swinging stride.

She does most of her walking alone. Even when she is wearing high heels it is difficult to keep up with her. Her friends say that at Hyde Park, when she puts on golf shoes and starts off, it is practically impossible.

She likes to go about alone and is surprised and rather embarrassed when she is recognized. Very often she is not. While she was on the western trip with the governor a few weeks ago, she spent a whole morning going about Chicago accompanied only by a couple of friends, and not a soul recognized her, although she had ridden the night before in one of the biggest parades the loop ever saw.

She is, to use the expression of one of her friends, "a whirlwind." She gets along perfectly on five or six hours' sleep and apparently does not know the meaning of the word "fatigue."

On a recent trip out into the state and up into New England, she got up one morning at 5:45, put in the forenoon on a train between Binghamton and Albany and the afternoon on another train between Albany and Boston, spent the evening with her husband's secretary, whose mother had died that day, arrived at her hotel after 11, gave an interview, posed for photographs, ate her dinner, sent off a dozen telegrams, talked on the telephone with the Governor in Albany, and finally got to bed well after 1 a. m.

Never Hurried

She is never hurried, apparently never harassed, and is seldom, her secretary says, even slightly irritable.

"She doesn't ever really get cross," the secretary, Miss Malvina Thompson, who has been with her 10 years, said. "The only thing I notice is that sometimes, if she's bothered about something, she gets sort of remote, but she always has time to listen to people."

For a woman in her position Mrs. Roosevelt lives a truly spartan life. Money spent on herself she seems to regard as wasted. She has only one $10 dress, to be sure, but none of her others cost anywhere nearly so much as anyone would expect.

Unless she is taking someone to lunch—and she likes to take people to lunch—she may very often be found eating her lunch at a drugstore soda fountain. When she goes traveling alone, she simply takes a lower berth. And all this is true despite the fact that she really spends a good deal of money and holds salaried jobs because she needs more than her private income.

"I don't know where it goes, exactly," she says with an amused expression in her eyes, "but I know I have a lot of fun doing things with money."

She likes people, all sorts of people, and loves to have them around. She has intimate friends among people of all ages and all circumstances in life.

Every afternoon in the executive mansion at Albany, at Hyde Park, or at the Roosevelt town house in New York, wherever she happens to be, tea is served, a good substantial tea, usually with chocolate cake. Whoever is about is invited in—secretaries, members of the family, newspapermen, personal friends, state troopers, distinguished guests.

Self-Reliant

She likes to do things for herself. She built a cottage near the furniture factory at Hyde Park in order that the children might learn to live without servants.

"The little boys," she says, "used to fight Sunday mornings over who was going to make the cocoa."

She hates being fussed over.

During her recent visit in Chicago two detectives were sent to escort her from the Congress hotel to the Stevens, where she was to join the Governor at a dinner.

Over the transom from the Roosevelt suite the somewhat puzzled detectives heard a gentle, beautifully modulated voice say: "Please send them away. I don't want them."

They went. There really didn't seem to be anything else to do.

Dental Poster Contest Makes Fine Progress

Members of the Delta county dental advisory committee sponsoring the dental health poster contest in Escanaba, Gladstone and Delta county schools, announced Friday that with the time allotted for completion and entry of posters more than half gone indications are that this year will see even more entries than were presented in the contest last year. The committee has limited the time of the contest from Nov. 1 to Nov. 20 for preparation of these dental health posters in the schools. Reports forwarded to committee members show that in addition to the schools that were represented last year many others, particularly the rural county schools are now at work on posters.

Miss Lois Gaut, art supervisor of the Escanaba public school system, stated that practically every child in the grade school buildings of the city will prepare a dental poster this year in place of the usual health poster required as part of the school work. Escanaba and Gladstone public and parochial schools compete in one division of the contest while the other schools of the county form a second competitive group.

Sister M. Loretta of St. Joseph's school report's that their pupils under the guidance of their class room teachers expect to be well represented in the contest. Duplicating the unusual showing made by St. Anne's school last year, Sister Rosalie of that school plans to enter a number of posters again this year.

Miss Emily Hansen, school nurse, who is in charge of the health program in Gladstone public and parochial schools, intends to use the best posters produced in Gladstone schools in a special poster exhibit in Gladstone before entering them in the Children's Fund contest.

That the county schools are taking a marked interest in their division of the contest is shown, the committee pointed out, by the fact that many of them already have their posters nearly ready to forward to the judges. Supt. George E. Weingartner of the Rock school system explained that the selection and entry of posters prepared by children in the Rock schools is in direct charge of each class room teacher and that he expects quite a large number to be forwarded to the committee.

Mrs. Anne Fleming of the Nahma schools, and Mrs. Anna Stade at Kipling report that the pupils in their grade schools are nearly ready to start the selection of the best posters from each class room prior to sending these to Escanaba for entry in the contest. Both of these schools produced prize winning posters last year.

Entering Posters

Attention of other teachers of the county is drawn by Dr. H. I. Miller of the Children's Fund staff to the statement in the announcement sent to each teacher that it is not necessary to wrap these posters for mailing to the committee. The posters may be left for entry at either Supt. A. R. Watson's office in the Gladstone high school building or Supt. R. E. Cheney's office in the Junior high school building, Escanaba, any time during school hours. They may also be left for the committee at either the Delft theatre, Escanaba, or at the Rialto in Gladstone in the evening. All posters should be delivered to one of these headquarters on or before Sunday, Nov. 20.

According to a representative of the dental advisory committee their attention has been called to the fact that a number of the smaller rural schools are hesitating to send in posters in the belief that they may not qualify with the other entries. The committee member explained that regardless of whether or not a poster is selected as winning one of the one dollar prizes every poster received by the judging committee will receive a free tooth brush or theatre ticket. For this reason it was pointed out that it is important that every poster be plainly marked with the child's name, school, grade and age.

Names of children preparing winning posters will be published early in December.

Ethel Cathcart Bride Of Austin Weeks Of Everett

Of particular interest to residents of Escanaba and of Marquette is the marriage of Miss Ethel Cathcart, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. David L. Cathcart of this city, to Austin Weeks, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Weeks of Everett, Wash, which took place the evening of November 5, in Everett, at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Grabner, North Grand avenue. Rev. Harlan Stone, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiated.

Chrysanthemums in a variety of color tones ranging from deep rose through bronze and golden yellow formed a lovely setting for the ceremony, which was performed at candlelight. The trellis under which members of the bridal party stood was banked with budding hawthorne, greens and colored leaves, and delicate ferns formed the improvised altar which was flanked with baskets of the chrysantemums. The tal white tapers which gave the only light for the ceremony, were in silver candelabra.

Preceding the ceremony Orvill Weeks, brother of the bridegroom, sang "At Dawning," and "Into the Dawn With You," with Cecil Weeks, who played the wedding marches, his accompanist. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Grabner.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white net, colonial model, fitted to the hips where it flared into rows of tiny ruffles. The and a white velvet sash was worn with the frock. The bride's veil of white net, fell in a train from a cap which was beaded in seed pearls. Her slippers were of white moire and she wore long white gloves. She carried a colonial bouquet of white chrysanthemums and pink rose buds.

Miss Lois Weeks, bridesmaid, wore a gown of yellow chiffon and lace, fitted tothe knees where it flared into lace gores, and with it a lace jacket and ivory slippers. She carried a sheaf of bronze chrysanthemums.

Orville Weeks attended his brother.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was served and a reception held. Presiding at the table which was centered in golden chrysanthemums, were Misses Marjory and Lois Weeks, Mrs. Weeks, mother of the bridegroom wore a gown of burgundy crepe and Mrs. Grabner, a model of wine red crepe. Both wore corsages of rosebuds and bouvardia.

Following a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Weeks will make their home in Everett. The bride for traveling wore a black crepe gown, a close fitting coat of black with silver fox cuffs and a matching black turban.

The bride, who has been in Everett for the past year, is a graduate of Northern State Teachers' college, Marquette, and formerly taught in the Gwinn schools. She is a member of Tau Pi Nu sorority of Marquette.

The bullet glanced off the ceiling and struck Cowan on the side of the head, piercing the lobe of his ear and lodging in his jawbone.

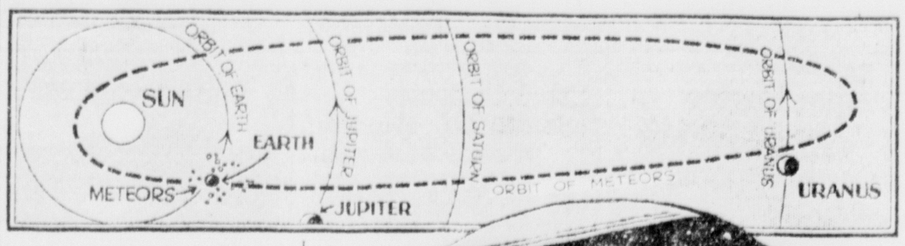
Leonids Due to Light Skies Nov. 13 to 19



By NEA Service

A brilliant celestial fireworks display is scheduled sometime during the period between Nov. 13 and Nov. 19 and astronomers are setting up instruments for study of the meteors, known as the Leonids, which will flash across the eastern skies.

It is a treat due only every 33 years. In 1833 there was a brilliant show and another in 1866. But in 1899 the Leonids failed to give their brilliant display. This year astronomers expect the Leonids to dazzle brilliantly, basing their expectations on the minor showers in 1930 and 1931.

Every November a swarm of meteors—rocks and gaseous matter—swarm around the sun in an elliptical orbit. The earth passes though the orbit of the meteors in November, but every 33 years—the time it takes the meteor shower to circle the sun—the meteor swarm is at the point where the earth cuts through the meteor orbit. Therefore the brilliant Leonid display.

In 1866 the Leonid display was coincident with the display of the "Lost Comet" which has not been seen since.

The constellation Leo comes over the horizon about midnight and it is between that time and dawn the Leonids will be seen. Astronomers expect the most brilliant shower on the night of Nov. 16.

Entered Politics at Age of 28, Roosevelt Always Liked Fights

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—Educated by private tutors, at the Groton preparatory school, at Harvard and at Columbia, Franklin D. Roosevelt took up the management of the family estate and various private business enterprises for a few years. But the Roosevelt blood and the figure being cut by his illustrious cousin were too much—young Roosevelt soon dived into politics. Go on with the story of the president-elect's life in this third installment.)

BY GARDNER BRIDGE

(Copyright 1932, By The Associated Press)

New York, Nov. 12. (AP)—President-elect Roosevelt entered the political arena at the age of 28.

Behind him lay Groton, Harvard, Columbia law school. He was spoiling for a fight, and it wasn't long before he had one. "There is nothing I love as much," he said a few years ago, "as a good fight."

The year 1910 was a turbulent one in politics. Theodore Roosevelt, grappling with the Republican bosses, dictated the nomination of Henry L. Stimson for governor. Maine went Democratic, and in New York the Democrats nominated John A. Dix for governor.

Franklin D. Roosevelt found himself with the Democratic nomination for state senator from Dutchess county, a very dubious honor. The odds against him were formidable; the district had been in the rock-ribbed Republican category for years. To the Republican bosses there was something incongruous in the thought that a relative of "T. R." was engaged in what they considered a hopeless contest.

But Roosevelt, inspired by the political joustings of his illustrious cousin, plunged into the campaign, touring the countryside in a "horseless buggy," shaking hands with every farmer he could find.

Mistrusted by Tammany

On election day the political cataclysm occurred. Dix was elected, Roosevelt was elected, and for the first time in 18 years the Democrats had captured control of both houses of the legislature.

Roosevelt had campaigned on the issue of "Bossism," and his traditionally Republican constituency, linking his name with that of "T. R.," had elected him by a majority of 1,140 votes. "Big Tim" Sullivan of Tammany Hall, informed of Roosevelt's election, remarked:

"Well, we'd better drop him off the dock. The Roosevelts run true to form. That kid is likely to do for us what the Colonel is going to do for the Republican party—split us wide open."

And hardly was Roosevelt's seat warm in the senate before he kicked over the party traces and led one of the most stubborn revolts in the history of Albany. It was on the selection of a successor to United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, whose term was expiring, and it marked Roosevelt's first skirmish with Tammany Hall.

Smith "Square Shooter"

Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany Czar, favored William F. Sheehan for the post. To the Progressives of that era "blue-eyed Billy" Sheehan represented the epitome of standpatism, and Roosevelt decided he never could vote for him. The young senator from Dutchess rounded up 18 assemblymen who shared his views, and when a caucus was called they went to Alfred E. Smith, then majority leader of the assembly, for advice.

Smith was a Tammany man, but he told them that if they were really sincere in their opposition to Sheehan they should remain away from the caucus, for if they attended they would be bound by the rule of the majority. From that advice, Roosevelt gained the impression that whatever Smith's views might be he was a "square shooter."

Roosevelt and his little band of insurgents remained away from the caucus, and then began one of the bitterest and longest political struggles ever waged on Capitol Hill. Tammany could not muster sufficient strength to elect Sheehan, and no amount of persuasion, cajolery threatening would break the Roosevelt ranks.

Spurred Him On

The lawmakers' nerves were growing ragged. To add to their discomfort a fire swept the Capitol and burned out their quarters, forcing them to meet in the cramped council chambers of city hall.

Finally, after almost three months of wrangling the deadlock was broken, with a victory for the Roosevelt forces. "Blue-eyed Billy" Sheehan lost the senatorship to Supreme Court Justice James A. OGorman. A few years later the election of United States senators was taken out of the legislature's hands and placed with the people.

The fight against Sheehan projected Roosevelt into the national picture in his "freshman" year at Albany and instilled in him a desire for public service.

(As a young senator Roosevelt was so handsome that newspapermen said he could become a matinee idol. But instead, he became assistant secretary of the navy—and the world war broke out. Read what happened during those trying times in Tuesday's installment.)

Gun Permit Not For Violators

Lansing—A state law imposes a sentence of from 30 days or $150 to 90 days in jail or $250 fine for anyone who has a gun permit and uses it to violate game laws. Thomas Beauchamp, Iron Mountain had a gun permit and five partridges in his possession when he was stopped by a conservation officer. He was sentenced to a jail term of 30 days by the Dickinson county circuit court.

Press Want Ads Cost Little, Accomplish Much.

Guinea Pig Illegal In Hunting Rabbits

Lansing, Mich.—It is just as illegal to use a guinea pig with which to hunt rabbits as it is to use a ferret, according to the department of conservation. The law forbids the taking of rabbits from their burrows or holes by artificial or mechanical or any other means, which would automatically bar the use of guinea pigs, the department claims.

Several reports of rabbit hunters using guinea pigs as an aid in taking rabbits have been recently reported to the department.

Madam! Do you know that it's clever to be a clipper? Here's a habit you can readily cultivate, and you'll find many of your best friends following it.

To become a clipper at one clip, so to speak, just see that the shears are handy when you sit down to read your newspaper. As you spot an advertisement of something that interests you . . . especially some item that you want to examine when you're shopping next time . . . clip out the notice and take it with you.

The merchants who advertise with us are glad to have you ask for specific merchandise. And sometimes it's helpful to refer to the advertisement when you're right in the store.

At all events, a clipping pinned to your shopping list helps you to remember this particular errand.

It simplifies and shortens a shopping-trip so much to know what you want and where to get it!

RED CROSS ROLL CALL UNDER WAY

Attention Called to Aid Given Locally by Red Cross

The local organization of the American Red Cross is calling attention to the annual roll call which opened on Armistice Day and extends until Thanksgiving. Printed matter and literature has been distributed to the business places and arrangements made at the two banks to issue memberships and buttons. Memberships are one dollar each, of which fifty cents is sent to the national organization, but as all in excess of this amount is retained for local relief it is the custom of many to subscribe liberally.

The local organization is calling attention to the assistance received from the national and county organization during the past year for the relief of the needy and unemployed of Gladstone. This includes over two car loads of flour, hundreds of yards of cotton flannel and sheeting and a quantity of ready made clothing such as skirts, stockings, overalls, etc., which is expected at an early date. In addition several hundred dollars in cash has been turned over to local welfare agencies.

Inasmuch as this city has received several times as much in aid from the national headquarters as has been remitted from the local organization for national requirements it is hoped by local officials that an increased number of memberships will be subscribed this year.

Local officers of the Delta county chapter of the American Red Cross are James T. Jones, vice chairman and John M. Olson, treasurer.

Annual Trek Of Hunters Starts

The annual trek into the woods of Northern Michigan got under way yesterday and dozens of hunters left for their camps to await the opening of the season next Tuesday morning. For the past week local hunters have been fitting out their camps and many of them are now set for the two week season in the woods.

Fifty-seven licenses have been issued locally to date according to Charles Green, local license distributor. It is expected that this number will be increased to 400 before the season opens.

Deer are plentiful in some sections, it is reported, while reports from other localities are to the effect that here is an apparent scarcity. Rabbit hunters in the Trail's End country report that as high as eleven deer have been seen in on afternoon.

Continued cold weather will be of advantage to the hunters, the snow in the woods being sufficient for tracking. Last season the weather was mild and rain during most of the time made hunting difficult.

Gladstone's Clean Record Continues

Even the election celebrations failed to blot the record being established in Gladstone for law observance. For more than two months not a single arrest has been recorded in the city courts.

Not only is Gladstone showing a good record but the surrounding territory is also on its good behavior. For several weeks there has not been a case in the justice courts here.

HUNTERS INVADE DEER TERRITORY

Large Army of Redcoats Swarm Through City As Season Nears

After a somewhat later start than in former years, the annual invasion of the red-coated army seems to be on in earnest judging from the hordes of hunters seen in the city during the past two days. Cars and trailers of all descriptions loaded with camp and hunting supplies are making their final stop here before leaving for the surrounding territory for a week or two of hibernation.

Local merchants report a brisk sale of provisions and hunting equipment, and deer licenses are going at a fast rate after a slow start.

Manistique hunters have already put their respective camps into shape for the two-week season and many of the local nimrods will leave today in order to be ready for the opening Tuesday; others will bide their time here until the first day.

Deer license fees are $3.50 for state residents and $50.00 for out of state hunters. It is lawful to hunt or take one male deer with antlers extending not less than three inches above the skull. Hunting parties of not less than four persons holding deer licenses and camping together may secure a permit to kill one male deer with antlers extending not less than three inches above the skull, for use in camp for a fee of $5.00.

Deer must be tagged with the metal self-locking seal immediately after being killed by attaching same to antler or ear in a permanent manner. The seals are furnished with the licenses. The license coupon must be attached to the deer at the shipping station in the presence of the shipping agent. Non-residents may ship one deer out of the state provided that license tag and seal are attached and provided that the permit printed on the back of the coupon is cancelled by the agent at the initial billing point. It is unlawful to transport deer in a motor vehicle unless the license tag and metal seal is attached to such deer.

Other prohibitions in regard to the hunting of deer are that artificial light or dogs cannot be used, female deer or fawn cannot be killed and deer cannot be hunted or pursued while in the water. It is also unlawful to have deer in possession more than 6o days after the close of the season. The season extends from November 15 to 30 inclusive.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Stocks held to the upward trend today. Late profit-taking checked an earlier advance and the averages closed unchanged, but during most of the two hours the market was able to show progress.

Strength in the grain market, which was closed yesterday, appeared to have more than counterbalanced any speculative misgivings that might have resulted from a drop of nearly 30,000 cars in weekly revenue freight loadings. Farm implement issues were especially strong and under their leadership the list made fair progress until last minute realizing dented the gains. Transactions totaled 888,752 shares.

Extreme advances in stocks ran from fractions to 3 points. With the exception of Case and Harvester, which held well, these gains were either shaded or lost, with the result that net variations were almost entirely fractional. American Can, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Westinghouse and North American showed something to the good; on the other hand, Bethlehem Steel, United Aircraft, American Tobacco "B," U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Bendix lost about a point. Union Pacific gained one; otherwise rail prices were mostly shaded.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Nov. 12—Bread and beer struggled for the center of the stage on the Chicago board of trade today.

In a single respect beer won. Its chief representative grain, barley, made a spectacular new price jump of 4½ cents, an upturn of 8½ cents in two days' dealings. Bread, however, as symbolized by wheat, scored general victory with greatly enlarged volume of trading and a maximum rise of 2½ cents. Corn, a source of material for beer, ran close second to wheat in extent of increased business and scored almost 2 cents advance.

Especially stimulating to the wheat market was announcement of the biggest flour sale ever consummated in the United States, 825,000 barrels of hard winter short patent flour purchased at Kansas City for eastern baking interests.

After the liveliest trading seen in many weeks, all grains closed unsettled at a moderate reaction from the day's top point, wheat 1 3-4 to 2 cents above Thursday's finish, corn 5-8 to 1 up, oats 5-8 to ½ advanced and provisions showing a rise of 5 to 12 cents. Barley held 2¼ cents of its newest gain.

Activity of trading in the corn pit expanded even more relatively than in wheat. Oats followed the upturns of other grains.

Provisions advanced with cereals, despite setbacks in hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, December, 44 7-8 to 45; 47 1-8 to 1-4; May, 49 7-8 to 50, 52 to 52 1-8; July, 51 1-8, 53¼. Corn, December, 26, 27¼; May, 31 3-8 to ½, 32 1-8; July, 33 1-8, bids.

Episodic Scheme of "Grand Hotel" Is Back on Broadway in Two New Plays

BY GILBERT SWAN

New York—Dramatization of ramifications, which was done to a turn in "Grand Hotel," is back on Broadway in liberal doses.

Suppose, for instance, a gushy, selfish and climbing matron of the superficial set decided to have a dinner for some visiting British nobility. But did not know that the affluence in which she lived was threatened by the sudden decline of the historic steamship concern which her husband has inherited.

Nevertheless, guests are invited. One is a broken down movie actor, unable to get work in the talkie era. The daughter of the hostess has had an affair with this one-time handsome fellow, unbeknown to the parents. And while a dinner await for him, he turns on the gas in his swanky hotel, his rent unpaid and his agent forced to tell him that there is little hope for a come-back.

* * *

Thus, one by one, the audience meets the guests. It meets the big go-getter from the West, who is buying in on his host's concern through "dummy" figures. He is called in by the president of the nation on a business conference. But he cannot become an ordinary human to the sharp-tongued worldly-wise blonde beauty he picked from a night club. He tosses diamond bracelets in her lap, but gives her no attention. So she has an affair with the doctor who comes to treat her feigned neurosis.

The doctor and his wife must have a show-down. So must the maid, the butler and the chauffeur. The play goes into the kitchen where the butler, already married abroad, goes bigamous to win the maid, and the resentful chauffeur fights it out, upsetting the fine dishes prepared for the occasion. So guests and hosts alike are revealed between the invitation and the dinner hour—between the first and the last acts.

Of such material is "Dinner at Eight," perhaps the most expertly cast and acted play in New York. It's a collaboration of Edna Ferber and George Kaufman—and it's always fair weather when this team gets together. When they got together on "The Royal Family," the result was delightful. This time, they still turn out a hit which scalpers have bought up for two months in advance.

* * *

Or, again, you can watch a party gather in the country home of a literary clan. With the graciousness of a good hostesses, cigarets are offered. One guest looks at the cigaret box and allows as how she has seen it before. Of course, insists the hostess, there has been a mistake.

At that moment, another guest decided to turn on a phonograph, but it is out of order. Had music come on, all would have danced and none would have been the wiser. Instead, an argument arises over the cigaret box. The host grows curious. The box is traced to his brother, presumed to have committed suicide. This, in turn, involves the hostess who had secretly loved the dead brother. Then it develops that the brother—Martin by name—did not kill himself but was slain by another guest in a struggle for the gun.

The presumption had been that Martin had killed himself after stealing funds from his own firm. Now it appears that still another guest had taken the funds and shifted the blame after Martin's death. The thief had also been in love with the wife of yet one more guest.

And so it goes in a strange cycle, each figure being dragged in as the ramification increase.

This is the new play from London, "Dangerous Corners," where it has been a large hit. But New York is not likely to take so kindly to it as "Dinner at Eight." It is far too chatty for the tastes of most play reviewers.

* * *

For the rest, the week contained two plays destined to failure: "The Anatomist" and "The Surgeon"—oddly paired by title—while in Fourteenth Street, Eva Le Gallienne revived her first great success "Lilliom," after some eleven years.

"Lilliom" remains, in spite of time, a touching and charming piece, one of the better contributions of Molnar.

As "F. R." Waited for the Ballots to Fly

bond market moved irregularly higher today, although the trading enthusiasm of yesterday was absent in most categories and some profit taking shaded the gains in a number of instances.

Sales totaled $4,414,000, par value, still somewhat under the normal aggregate for a Saturday session. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds showed a gain of two-tenths of a point at 70.3, which compares with a low for the year of 57.5 and a high of 78.1.

There were some wide swings in a few rarely traded issues. For instance, New York Susquehanna & Western second 4½s of 1937 jumped 29 points on the sale of two bonds, while Southern Railway Consolidated 5s of 1994, registered, dropped 17 points on the same minimum turnover.

The heaviest trading of the day was in Studebaker 6s of 1942, 160 bonds changing hands at an advance of 1 1-8 points, closing at 51¼, a new high for the year. Transactions involving fewer than 10 bonds, however, were in the majority.

Press Want Ads Cost Little, Accomplish Much.

Curb Market Prices Virtually Unchanged

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—The curb market closed the week with a session in which profit taking was easily absorbed, and prices, on the average, were virtually unchanged. Transfers totaled 120,000 shares against 70,000 last Saturday.

The utility stocks drew a major share of the day's activity, with changes mostly unimportant in either direction, though small gains predominated. Electric Bond and Share, Cities Service and Niagara Hudson Power were unchanged. American Gas & Electric and United Light & Power "A" were fractionally higher. Some of the preferred issues were higher, Electric Light & Power second preferred gaining more than 2 points.

Some profit taking appeared during the early period of trading, stimulated by the recent two-day rally. There was little in the day's new developments to accelerate buying or selling and the market was left largely in the hands of the professionals.

Some wide swings occurred in the specialty group, but turnover was in most cases small. Aluminum Co. advanced more than 4 points. Great Atlantic & Pacific, on an odd lot transaction, was up 3. New York Steam gained nearly 7.

BR-R-R! THAT'S COLD!

Pasadena, Cal.—Just how he'll go about it, we do not know, but Dr. Alexander Gotz, of the California Institute of Technology, wants to create a temperature of 454 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. He contends that intense cold holds the secret of the formation of the elements, and that if such a temperature can be created it may show how the elements are formed.

A CALL IN THE NIGHT

Evansville, Ind.—A deputy sheriff's work must be done no matter what the hour of day or night, as Miss Edna McCarty, chief probate clerk, found out the other night when Deputy Sheriff Edward Dibler awakened her at midnight to tell her that she was on the jury. The final outcome of the matter was that the summons was for her father, George McCarty, who had been dead for several years.

MOTHER LOVE SEEN AS A MENACE

London—Mother love and too much "fuss-making" over a child is a menace when carried out too far. Such is the opinion of Prof. John B. Watson, noted English research worker.

"It shows as invalidism," he says.

"We have been taught from infancy to report every little ill. We have been allowed to avoid the doing of boresome duties by reporting them. And above all, we have, by reporting them, got the tender solicitude of our parents and the kissing and codling of our mothers. Mother fights our battles for us and stands between us and the things we try to avoid doing.

"There is a sensible way of treating children. Treat them as if they were young adults. Dress them, bathe them with care and circumspection. Let your behavior always be objective and kindly, but firm."

St. Joseph Ends Season With 25 to 6 Victory

FLIVVERS LOSE TO PAROCHIALS

Brunelle Outfits Have Not Been Defeated In Two Years

Closing the most successful football season in the history of the school, St. Joseph purple warriors yesterday rode over Kingsford, 25 to 6, and thereby marked up the second consecutive undefeated season for Coach Leo Brunelle and his St. Joseph high school football squad. Also, the game marked the 18th consecutive battle in which the Parochials have played without suffering defeat.

The St. Joseph victory was well earned with the Parochials running up their touchdowns in the second and third periods when they had the wind at their backs. Three of the Parochial scores came in the third period and left the Flivver aggregation hopelessly beaten.

With the aid of a strong northern wind, Kingsford gained on the Parochials in the first period punting duel but Brazeau, St. Joseph punter, was displaying remarkable punting against the stiff breezes. The Flivvers never seriously threatened, however, in the period, reaching only to the 26-yard stripe of the Parochials as the period ended.

Kingsford showed a flash of offensive power in the beginning of the second quarter, marching to the St. Joseph 20-yard stripe but two ensuing plays lost 15-yards. The third play gained 10 yards for Kingsford via a pass but they finally were forced to give up possession of the ball on the 25-yard stripe. Brazeau kicked from that point to the Flivver team's 10-yard stripe and Kingsford was penalized to the one-yard line on the play. Olson punted back to the 15-yard line, a bad punt against the wind. Beaumier sprinted nine yards to the six-yard stripe but the Parochials forfeited the ball on the next play when Brazeau fumbled and Kingsford recovered.

Beaumier Breaks Loose

The situation was reversed a moment later, however, when Kingsford fumbled and St. Joseph recovered on the 18-yard marker. Using the old Michigan S3 reverse play, Beaumier picked up 12 yards and a first down on the five-yard line. Kingsford was penalized to the one-yard line for delaying the game on incoming substitution and Brazeau crashed over from that point for a touchdown. His kick for the extra point struck the cross bar and bounced away.

Kingsford kicked off to St. Joseph at the start of the second half, Brazeau returning to the 42 yard line. On the first play Beaumier broke loose, evaded several Kingsford tacklers and sprinted 58 yards to score. A kick for the extra point was not good.

Poor judgement cost Kingsford a touchdown a minute later. Brazeau kicked over the goal line on the kickoff and a Kingsford back tried to run it instead of permitting a touchback. He was tackled on the three-yard line and Kingsford was penalized to the one-yard line. Olson attempted to punt from behind his goal but St. Joseph forwards broke through to block it and Boddy fell on the ball over the line for a touchdown. Pass for the added point was incomplete. Score 18 to 0, St. Joseph.

Later in the period St. Joseph launched a strong running attack, advancing deep into enemy territory. A 15-yard penalty temporarily halted them but Brazeau faded back and lined a long pass to Boddy who was downed on the 10-yard line for a first down. Beaumier scored on the fourth try without being touched. Brazeau kicked the goal.

In the fourth period Coach Brunelle substituted an entire team. A fumble on the fourth down gave Kingsford the ball on the 28-yard line and later a pass from the 15-yard stripe scored the lone Kingsford touchdown. The try for the point was smeared.

Coach Brunelle's entire third team went into the fray in the final few minutes. An intercepted pass by St. Joseph ended the game.

Officials who handled the game in an efficient manner were Flanagan, Edick and Corcoran of Escanaba.

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 12. (AP)—Roaring along with the power and deception it showed before the dismal invasion of Pittsburgh, Notre Dame today pushed over two touchdowns in the first five minutes of play and added another in the final period to rout Northwestern, 21 to 0.

The battle was full of thrills from the opening kick-off when big George Melinkovich electrified the shivering throng by running back Ollie Olson's kick 98 yards for a touchdown that settled the issue. They saw Northwestern, valiant but outclassed, come back to threaten five times from Notre Dame's 13, 15 and 12 yard line only to lose golden opportunities because of the watchful Rambler pass defense. "Pug" Rentner, star Northwestern back, was the only victim of the hard tackling and hard play, breaking a rib in the first period but playing until the half before the injury was discovered.

Melinkovich's dash was the beginning of the end for the Wildcats. Five minutes later, Olson attempted to punt on the fourth down but was tackled on his own 37 yard line by Joe Kurth, giving Notre Dame the ball at that spot. Apparently stopped on the 23 yard line, Koken dropped back on the fourth down, arched a high pass over the end zone and Dominic Vairo caught the ball with no one around him and time to spare for an easy touchdown.

Notre Dame's final tally came in the fourth period on one of the prettiest plays ever pulled off by any Rambler team. After Koken had tossed a lateral to Steve Banas, a flip that netted 22 yards and brought the ball to Northwestern's three yard line, the Wildcat line revolted, pushing the Rambler ball luggers back to the six yard line in three smashes at the line. On the fourth down, the Notre Dame backs executed a perfect double lateral, Koken to Banas to Kosky to Jaskwich for the score.

OHIO WALLOPS PENN, 19 TO 0

Varner Falls on Own Kickoff for Freak Touchdown

BY JAMES L. RENICK
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Ohio Stadium, Columbus, Nov. 12 (AP)—A valiant band of Quakers from the University of Pennsylvania today tasted Ohio State's sample of Western Conference football double lateral, Koken to Banas to Kosky to Jaskwich for the score.

Two of Ohio's touchdowns were due directly to Hinchman's passing. The third resulted from a mental lapse on the part of the entire Pennsylvania team after Ohio, midway in the fourth period, had scored its second touchdown and kicked off. Varner booted the ball high over the heads of the Penn players and it came to rest untouched in the end zone. As Shanahan and Munger of Pennsylvania both stood over the ball, Varner streaked down the field to fall on it for the touchdown.

Buckeyes Show Power

In the second quarter Hinchman punted out of bounds on the three yard line. Kellett punted back to Oliphant who returned to the 25. Hinchman and Carroll picked up seven, and a pass, Hinchman to Rosequist to Oliphant, advanced Ohio to the six yard stripe.

There Penn stiffened but after Kellett punted, Hinchman heaved a long aerial to Gillman, who shook off two tacklers and the referee, who was squarely in his path, to score. A bad pass from center spoiled the chance for another point.

At the start of the final period, Ohio, starting from mid-field, quickly went to the 15 yard line. Wetzel picked up eight yards in two plays and Cramer made first down on Penn's five yard line. Hinchman and Wetzel advanced three yards and on the third play Wetzel went over. He place-kicked the extra point.

It was on the kick-off following this touchdown that Penn experienced the mental lapse that in 30 seconds gave Ohio another touchdown. Hinchman's attempted place kick for the extra point was wide.

The All Stars football team beat the Yeomen by a score 6 to 0 at Escanaba Saturday. Richard Thompson made the Touchdown for the All Stars.

Coach Leo Brunelle and his St. Joseph football team yesterday finished their second year without a football defeat. The Parochials have played 18 games without defeat and this season was their most successful in history.

The scores of the Parochials over the past two seasons follow:

St. Joseph 19; Vulcan 0.
St. Joseph 20; Escanaba 6.
St. Joseph 7; Manistique 7.

St. Joseph 20; Gladstone 0.
St. Joseph 0; Norway 0.

St. Joseph 12; Norway 0.
St. Joseph 26; Houghton 6.
St. Joseph 7; Kingsford 7.

Closing the 1930 season, the Parochials won from Newberry 12 to 2 and defeated Rock, 20 to 0. Their last defeat was at the hands of Munising by a 6 to 0 score.

ILLINI RALLY CAUSES UPSET

Hoosiers Unable to Stop Passes and Lose 18 to 6

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 12 (AP)—Illinois' battered football warriors gave another demonstration of why they are called the fighting Illini today, rallying to defeat Indiana, 18 to 6, for their first major victory at home since 1929.

Favored to win without much trouble, the Hoosiers rushed over a touchdown early in the first period, Stan Sulaski charging through the line after a long march for five yards and the score. But Illinois came back in the second and earned its third Big Ten triumph in two years before a small Dad's day crowd of 5,000 fans.

A pair of sophomores, Frank Froschauer and Jack Beynon teamed up with Captain Gil Berry to dazzle Indiana with passes, and account for two touchdowns in the second session, another in the third. A bit of Hoosier strategy that went wrong helped Illinois. A long punt sent Indiana back to its two yard line. Edmonds attempted a surprise pass, but Berry intercepted and lugged the ball to the three yard line. Froschauer bounced through the line for the touchdown.

A 54 yard journey by Beynon a few moments later but the ball in scoring position and a triple pass, Berry to Froschauer to Cummings, moved it to the three yard line where the Hoosiers held. Edmonds' kick was short and Berry wiggled back to the 13 yard line. On the next play he followed brilliant interference around right end for the second score.

Keeping the Hoosiers opened up with passes, the Illini advanced to the 13 yard line in the third period from where Berry tossed to Beynon for the final touchdown.

BADGERS BEAT GOPHERS, 20-13

"Mickey" McGuire Scores Three Wisconsin Touchdowns

BY E. L. ALMEN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Camp Randall Stadium, Madison, Wis., Nov. 12 (AP)—Wisconsin rose to unexpected heights today to score a 20 to 13 victory over Minnesota in the 42nd renewal of their traditional rivalry, the oldest in the middle west.

Walter "Mickey" McGuire, a Hawaiian youth with an Irish name, brought the crowd to its feet on the first play of the game when he took the ball on the kickoff and ran 85 yards for a touchdown. Not a hand was laid on him. Linfor kicked the extra point.

Jack Manders tied the count at seven all a few minutes later when he drove over from the six yard line in two line smashes. The Gophers had advanced to scoring position on a long run by Proffitt. Manders kicked the extra point. The Badgers retaliated soon after, however, on a pass, Linfor to McGuire. The Hawaiian youth leaped high in the air and snatched the ball and then stepped three yards for a touchdown.

Gophers Tie Score

The officials' ruling on a pass in the third quarter brought the Gophers their chance to tie the count at 13-all. Haas broke through for a long gain to the Wisconsin 26 yard line, where Lund elected to pass to Tanner. McGuire knocked the pass down, but it was ruled interference and Minnesota took the ball on the 7 yard line. Manders was called into the game despite a bruised ankle and he plunged three yards. Lund then skirted end for a touchdown. Manders failed to get the extra point.

For most of the fourth quarter both teams waited for the break that would mean victory. The Badgers got it when Lund received a bad pass from center on fourth down, and was tackled before he could punt. Wisconsin took the ball on Minnesota's 43 yard line and opened up with three passes.

McGuire caught the last near the side line and struggled over from the three yard line with a tackler hanging on. Linfor's kick which gained the extra point ended the scoring.

Army Has Easy Time With North Dakota

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—Army scored in every period to today's game with North Dakota State and buried the Bisons under the weight of eight touchdowns, to win 52 to 0.

Coach Ralph Sasse started his regulars in the first quarter, but after they had piled up 13 points in that period, he put the reserves into the game. The reserves continued the attack which the regulars found so successful and in the second quarter matched the score piled up in the first period, ending the half 26 to 0.

Army's regulars came back to start the second half and they remained in the battle until well into the fourth quarter, with the score standing 46 to 0. The reserves came back to make another touchdown before the final gun.

North Dakota State's attack could not penetrate the Army defense, time after time the Bisons falling in their attempts to go through the line. The Army attack, however, repeatedly found holes in the visitors line and went through for good gains.

Purvis Stars As Purdue Beats Iowa

Iowa Stadium, Iowa City, Nov. 12. (AP)—High geared football, with husky Duane Purvis doing the heavy work, carried Purdue's driving Boilermakers a step nearer a share in the Western Conference championship today as they broke down a stubborn Iowa defense to win 18 to 0.

Purvis pounded holes where other Boilermaker backs faltered and when the surprised Purdue players found themselves still scoreless as the second period minutes were dwindling, he rallied his forces to lead a drive from his own 42 yard line to the goal.

Harvard Noses Out Holy Cross, 7 to 0

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 12. (AP)—After weathering a stubborn Holy Cross attack for three periods, Harvard's hard fighting football forces today lessened the sting of recent humiliations by converting its only opportunity into an unexpected 7-0 victory over the purple-clad crusaders.

Three times the powerful invaders surged inside the Crimson's 10-yard line, but they lacked the punch needed to dent the desparate goal-line stands.

Although all of Harvard's regular backfield were ready for play, Coach Eddie Casey held out all but Quarterback Harry Wells and forced the reserves to put on the attack.

Title Hopes Fall for Several Grid Teams

By The Associated Press

Another day of furious football action yesterday brought serious checks to the championship bids of Pittsburgh and Tennessee and definitely ended Columbia's dream of its first undefeated season.

Pittsburgh, generally regarded as the outstanding favorite for the mythical national title, was decisively outplayed by Nebraska in a battle that ended in a scoreless draw. Tennessee likewise was held to a 0-0 deadlock by Vanderbilt's Commodores and saw its hopes of a Southern conference championship virtually disappear. Columbia held a 6-0 lead on Brown's rip-roaring Bruins for three periods but the invaders from Providence marched 80 yards to a touchdown in the fourth quarter and won 7-6 when Quarterback Bob Chase booted the extra point.

Brown's victory over Columbia left the Bruins sharing the top of the eastern standing with Colgate as the section's only undefeated and untied major elevens. Colgate, which will meet Brown Thanksgiving Day, battered Syracuse into submission, 16-0.

Yale surprised the critic by holding Princeton's highly regarded outfit to a 7-7 tie and Harvard came back from successive defeats by Army and Brown to whip Holy Cross, 7-0. Cornell romped through Dartmouth, 21-6; Fordham beat New York university, 7-0, and Temple, unbeaten but twice tied, nosed out Penn State, 13-12. Rutgers won the "Middle Three" title by trouncing Lehigh, 37-6, and Amherst, walloping Williams, 32-7, captured the Little Three championship. West Virginia Wesleyan hung a 14-0 beating on hapless Georgetown.

While suffering serious setbacks in the tying of Pittsburgh and the defeats of Penn by Ohio State, 19-0, and Villanova by Detroit, 28-12, the east got some measure of consolation in intersectional warfare through the victories of Army over North Dakota State, 52-0, Navy over Maryland, 28-7, West Virginia over Washington & Lee, 19-0, and Carnegie Tech over Xavier, 15-10.

Michigan ploughed ahead toward the Big Ten title by whipping Chicago, 12-0, while Purdue, ready to slip into the lead should the Wolverines falter next week against Minnesota, trounced Iowa, 18-0. Minnesota dropped a 20-13 decision to Wisconsin to the surprise of many observers and Illinois conquered Indiana, 18-6. Northwestern was no match for Notre Dame and surrendered, 21-0.

Auburn slipped into the Southern conference lead by whipping Florida, 21-6, while Tennessee and Vanderbilt were battling to their scoreless draw. Louisiana State, only other unbeaten and untied conference team, dropped a 6-0 verdict to Centenary of the southern intercollegiate A. M. Georgia Tech won a surprising 6-0 triumph over Alabama, North Carolina upset Duke by the same score, and Tulane beat Kentucky, 6-3.

Southern California romped through Oregon, 33-0, to maintain its undefeated record in the Pacific Coast conference, Washington and Washington State locked in a scoreless deadlock.

Utah clinched the Rocky Mountain title by beating Denver, previously unwhipped in conference combat, 27-0.

Big Six competition was marked Kansas' 7-0 victory over Missouri, and Oklahoma's 19-0 conquest of Iowa State.

JORDAN PLAYS SCORELESS TIE

Snyder and Ockstadt Star In Line Against Marquette

Menominee, Nov. 12 (Special)—Jordan college frosh out-played but could not out-run superb Marquette backs here today in a game replete with thrills but lacking scoring punch. The Jordan line hammered holes through the Marquette line but Marquette backs were always there to block them up and 3,000 fans had to be satisfied with a scoreless tie.

McWilliams and Hayskar, regular Jordan backs, were able to play but were not at their best because of bad shoulders.

Jordan consistently drove through the Marquette forward wall for good gains only to be pulled down by four hard tackling backs.

Play was in mid-field for most of the game with the exception of two sensational drives featuring Corsi and McWilliams to the nine and 12 yard lines. Both times Jordan lost the ball on downs.

Marquette backs were able to get starts on beautifully executed offtackle slants but the work of Snyder and Ockstadt on the line made any great gains impossible.

Ockstadt was removed from play in the first quarter after throwing Marquette backs for two successive losses. Jordan was anxiously awaiting the doctor's word on his injury today. His fast-charging tactics have won for him the respect of his teammates and opponents.

Coach Leonard Umnus took no chances with his regulars and removed them at the slightest sign of injury. Slight injuries suffered today will be healed for the Notre Dame game.

TIGERS, YALE FIGHT TO TIE

Aerial Attacks Result in Sensational 7 to 7 Struggle

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Palmer Stadium, Princeton, N. J., Nov. 12 (AP)—After striking three times at Yale's goal line defense without breaking through, John Paul Kadlic, Princeton's star sophomore quarterback, turned loose his aerial weapons to give the Tigers a sensational 7-7 tie with the Elis today.

All the thrills of this 56th annual battle of ancient rivals, played in a cold wind before a crowd of 40,000 spectators, were packed into the last half as the battling Bengals rallied to match Yale's 80 yard drive that sent Bob Lassiter hurtling over the goal line.

Ken Fairman, Tiger end, crossed the Eli goal on a 20 yard passing play engineered by the versatile Kadlic. Pete Fortune, the big tackle from Chicago, place-kicked the extra point that proved the big equalizer in a game hard fought from start to finish.

Tigers Turned Back

After a scoreless defensive struggle in the first half, marked by the failure of two Yale attempts to register a placement field goal with the toe of Clar Curtin, tackle. Both teams threw all their offensive weapons into the fray in the last half.

Aided by the wind, which gave Purnell a big kicking edge over Dud Parker of Yale in the third period, the Tigers twice battered their way to the Eli threshold only to be turned back.

The Elis came back in the fourth period with a quick-scoring rush as Lassiter shifted from the ground to an air attack. A 34 yard pass to Bob O'Connell, end, put the ball on Princeton's 34 yards line. O'Connell then swept a dozen yards on the old end-around play, Parker took a short pass for another first down, on the Tiger seven yard mark, and Lassiter bucked over in three rushes, aided by a five yard penalty against Princeton for being offside. Curtin place kicked the extra point.

Kadlic's subsequent passing for Princeton in the final period caught the Eli defense so flat-footed that the wonder was the Tigers failed to score more than once.

McPartland was on the receiving end and on Yale's 20 yard line when he took a pass from Kadlic for a 35-yard gain. Fairman two plays later was in the clear as he grabbed another pass by Kadlic and ran five yards to cross the goal line. Fortune's kick tied the score.

Navy Tars Defeat Maryland, 28 to 7

Baltimore, Nov. 12. (AP)—In one of their best exhibitions of the year, the Navy Tars ran, passed and charged their way to a 28 to 7 defeat over their state rivals, the University of Maryland, here today.

Early in the game the Navymen negotiated their first score. A Navy punt bounced from the hands of two Maryland backs as they collided in attempting to catch it, and Harbold recovered for Navy on the Terps 37-yard stripe. Chung-Hoon personally conducted the oval to the scoring zone in four plays, but Borries missed the kick.

Borries ran Maryland's kick back 55 yards to the Terps' 30 yard mark. In three plays Borries gained 20 yards, ChungHoon added one more, and then went over, and Campbell added the extra point.

In the second quarter, Navy began a march on the Old Liners' 40 yard line, and after four line plunges netted 10 yards, Borries got clear and galloped 20 yards across the line. He missed the try for extra point.

DEMANDS ACTION— AND SHE GETS IT

Salt Lake City, Utah (NEA)—Esther Johnson was tired of the way court was handled. She had been hailed to justice after she allegedly drove an automobile five miles an hour in town.

Her trial came up first Oct. 1. On that day it was continued until Oct. 8. When that day rolled around it was postponed until Oct. 15.

Finally she faced Judge Jensen. She heard the court order another continuance at the request of her lawyer. Jumping to her feet she cried:

"Continued nothing! I've received a liberal education in this court for four weeks, and now I want action."

The case was then and there closed for the forfeiture of a $7 bond.

PROSPERITY LOOMS

Blackburn, England—If nobody will help bring prosperity back to Blackburn, the mill workers will bring it back themselves. They have raised enough money to get a first option on the purchase of three mills which were to be sold at auction. They plan to run the mills on a co-operative basis.

CHURCHES JOIN IN OBSERVANCE

Memorial Service to Gustavus Adolphus to Be Held

The three hundredth anniversary of the death of Gustavus Adolphus, king of Sweden, on the battlefield of Lutzen, Germany, Nov. 6, 1632, will be observed this afternoon in the Bethany Lutheran church, under the auspices of the Swedish Methodist Episcopal church, Calvary Baptist church, Swedish Mission church and Bethany Lutheran church.

Choir members from the four churches will constitute a chorus of about fifty voices, which will contribute several numbers to the program, directed by Miss Ruth Sundwick, with Mrs. V. F. Anderson at the organ and Miss Anona Anderson as pianist.

Dr. Julius Lincoln of Chicago will give the address at this occasion, speaking on the character, life and work of the illustrious King Gustavus Adolphus. Dr. Lincoln is well and favorably known as an orator of more than usual ability. He is a keen student of history, particularly history dealing with the people of Nordic stock.

This event has been anticipated with much interest among people of Scandinavian descent in this community and it is expected that the Bethany church will be filled to its full capacity this afternoon. The program will begin at 3 o'clock.

THEY GOT HIS CLOTHES

Knoxville, Tenn.—It's a good thing Reverend William Clark wasn't swimming when the housebreakers entered his house the other day. While Reverend Clark was out distributing Sunday School literature, men broke into his house and stole all of his clothing, as well as a few household fixtures. The only clothing Reverend Clark had left was what he had on.

Bootleggers Hope To Gain Pardons From Gov. Comstock

Marquette — Announcement by William A. Comstock, Michigan's Democratic governor-elect, that "if it is legally possible" he will release all offenders against the state prohibition law serving sentences in Michigan prisons may bring freedom to 11 men now serving sentences for liquor law violations in the Marquette branch prison.

Tagged Trout Get Fish Habit Data

Lansing—Lake Michigan steelheads, which gained considerable interest two years ago when tagging experiments first indicated their migratory propensities are now being rivalled by the lake trout.

July 9, 1931 a lake trout was caught in a pound net operated by Smith Brothers, Port Washington, Wisconsin, just outside the Port. Smith Brothers tagged him and released him into Lake Michigan again. September 30, 1932 the same trout was caught on a hook in 40 fathoms of water just out from Saugatuck, Michigan by L. J. Gatham.

Smith Brothers, who are considered one of the largest commercial fishing operators on the Great Lakes have been carrying on fish tagging experiments for several year, attempting to determine migratory habits, rate of growth and other information about commercial species. More than 3,000 fish tagged at Port Washington are now swimming in Lake Michigan.

Two years ago when results of steelhead tagging were first noted it was discovered that this species frequently crosses Lake Michigan within two or three weeks.

Democrats Staged Big Landslide In 1890, Paper Shows

Democratic landslides, such as the nation witnessed last Tuesday, are really no novelty, according to a copy of the Escanaba Mirror, dated Nov. 8, 1890, which has been handed to the Daily Press by City Clerk Carl E. Anderson.

The Mirror was then edited and published by the late Phil J. McKenna, who at the time of his death about three or four years ago, was practicing law in Chicago.

Further down, we read that:

"The result of Tuesday's election in Delta county has caused widespread surprise on all sides. The Democratic county ticket is elected from sheriff to coroners, and what is still more surprising, perhaps, not a single candidate on the Republican state or county ticket received a plurality in the county. A. R. Northup was defeated by Dr. Girard, and Rev. Mr. Easterday was knocked gilly-west by George W. Sharp. Sheriff McCarthy received a larger majority than he did two years ago, as did also County Clerk John P. McColl. Clancy's victory over Mead, and Mertz's over P. M. Peterson caused considerable surprise among Republicans, but Democrats who watched the canvass closely knew that the result was inevitable."

THEATRES

Five stars instead of one shine in "Grand Hotel," spectacular picturization of the celebrated Vicki Baum novel and play, which will head the program at the Delft Theatre this week.

Probably no film in recent years has attracted as much advance attention as this unusual screen drama which is described as a symbolical study of human nature in startling realism. The play ran in New York for more than a year with similar success accorded its presentation in other American cities as well as the capitals of Europe.

In bringing it to the screen Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer placed five of its major stars in the central characterizations and engaged Edmund Goulding, director of "Devil's Holiday" and "The Trespasser," to handle the ambitious assignment. The remarkable cast is headed by Greta Garbo with John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Berry and Lionel Barrymore playing outstanding roles. Lewis Stone and Jean Hersholt are featured in the large supporting cast.

The story, which takes place entirely within the confines of a fashionable Berlin hotel, entwines the lives of a varied group of persons, including an exotic Russian dancer whose romantic interlude with a reckless baron saves her from suicide but results in her lovers murder. Involved in the drama are a scheming business man, a seductive stenographer, a consumptive clerk spending his savings on one last fling in life, a shell-shocked doctor and the hotel's head porter. How these people are all brought together and how their various intrigues and adventures change the course of their entire lives forms the theme of the plot.

DRY AGENT IS SHOT TO DEATH

Another Injured, Alleged Bootlegger Is Held After Gun Affair

Beatrice, Neb., Nov. 12 (AP)—Ted Wells, 30, alleged bootlegger, was captured today after he had, officials said, shot to death Chester Mason, 28, federal prohibition agent of Omaha, and seriously wounded Mason's companion, Byron Kennedy of Beatrice.

Kennedy told officers he and Mason had arranged to buy liquor from Wells in an effort to apprehend him for violation of federal laws. "When we approached Wells, he opened fire," Kennedy related to Police Chief Paul Action. Kennedy was shot twice in the mouth and is at a hospital here. Physicians expect him to recover.

Gage authorities found Wells at his brother's home in Diller, near here after a search of several hours. He surrendered without resistance.

He told officers Kennedy had a gun and that when he met Mason and him on the highway one of them struck him and knocked him down. A scuffle followed, he said, and the two were shot. Wells told officers he called to Ray Mudge, a farmer who was working nearby, and asked him to take a gun away from Kennedy.

"I was in a daze," Wells told county officers, "and don't remember exactly what happened. I do remember getting into my automobile and driving to my brother's home."

Officers said they found no weapon in Wells' possession. He had a cut on his mouth and a bump on his head.

At the scene of the shooting officers found three .32 calibre automatic cartridges. Mudge said that after the shooting he went to the scene, took a gun away from Wells and threw it to the side of the road. It has not been found. Mudge said he did not witness the shooting.

Federal agents have been conducting a series of liquor raids in this section of Nebraska during the last two days and a half dozen arrests have been made.

Mason is survived by his widow and three children. Kennedy is not employed.

State Democrats To Meet In Soo

Sault Ste. Marie—William A. Comstock, governor-elect of Michigan, will be the honor guest at a banquet to be sponsored by Democrats of the Eleventh district, in the Hotel Ojibway, Dec. 3. This will be Mr. Comstock's first public appearance after his election. He will present his plans for the state and for cooperation with President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt in the solution of national affairs.

Prentis Brown, of St. Ignace, congressman-elect, and John K. Stack, Jr., of Escanaba, auditor general-elect, will also be honor guests.

FUN FOR THE COPS

Boston—Perley Howard and a detail of Malden police had a swell time chasing chickens in the rain recently. The chickens got loose when several crates, containing a few hundred of them, were broken. The cops had to chase them over the whole neighborhood while the rain came down in torrents.

NATION WILL SEE METEORS

Leonids Due This Week; Astronomers Await Nature's Show

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In the past 1,000 years more than once, millions of startled humans have seen what they thought at the moment was "the end of the world," when the Leonid meteors filled the sky with shooting stars thick as snowflakes. The Leonids are due again and what conservative astronomers hope for this time is told here by the head of the American Meteor society in an article written for the Associated Press.)

BY DR. CHARLES P. OLIVER
Astronomer
University of Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, Nov. 12 (AP)—Our most earnest wish about the Leonid meteors, due November 14, 15 and 16, is to keep from making unduly strong promises.

We prefer to have the casual observer surprised by a good shower of meteors rather than disappointed by a moderate or poor one.

We are however making careful and extensive preparations for the shower which we hope will arrive. Our hopes are based on three things; on, the observation of the past four years; two, records of Leonid showers; three, computations by English and Russian astronomers.

In 1928 a fair number of Leonids was observed—more than the average for the immediately preceding years. In 1929 there were very few. In 1930 there were many more than in 1929. In 1931 there was an excellent shower in some places, rates of over 100 an hour being reported for the morning hours.

"Rain" of Stars

This gradual increase is what would be expected if the major shower were coming this year or in 1933.

The history of the Leonids and the astronomical computations are however a major source of our optimism. At 33-year intervals meteor showers have been reported at about the proper dates 20 times since 902 A. D. The 1833 shower was described as a "rain" of stars, and made a deep impression on even the most casual and uninterested observers. The predicted 1866 shower came on time and was certainly an impressive sight, though far from equalling that of 1833.

The 1899 Leonids failed to appear and in their disappointment people failed to notice that careful computations, published shortly before the Leonid date, had indicated that the meteor stream had been moved out of its path by the powerful gravitation pull of Jupiter.

We wish to avoid this year any similar dissatisfaction with astronomical promises; meteor showers cannot be predicted with absolute accuracy.

The calculations this year indicate that the meteor stream has been shifted back toward its orbit before 1899; we should not miss the stream again. However it has not been moved back to its 1833 position. We should not have so good a show as in 1833.

The moon will be so full this year as to make the dimmer meteors invisible.

The nights on which we are keeping closest watch are November 14-15; 15-16; and 16-17. The best chances for the largest numbers of Leonids are for November 15-16, that is, in the early morning hours of the 16th. Some will probably be observed as early as Nov. 13-14 and as late as 17-18. Many more will be visible after midnight than before.

Casual observers who want to help us to get more complete records of the shower should make hourly counts, each observer working and reporting entirely independently on those which he personall sees.

If th shower does not come this year, there would still be a fair chance for its appearance in 1933.

SAD ENDING

Columbus, O.—Ned Nicklos, 34, and Arthur Henry, 45, have always been pals. Recently Henry got a job and the two decided to celebrate over a pint of liquor. The celebration wound up with Nicklos in a hospital, probably fatally stabbed, and his buddy in jail charged with suspicion pending outcome of Nicklos' condition.
